GEORGIA RAILROAD. GEORGIA RAILROAD.

GREENSEORO, Ga., March 3, 1888.—This is to certify that during the year 1886, and part of 1887. I suffered so, with rheumatism that I could hardly get about with any comfort. I could not raise my arms above my shoulders and could not reach to my shoes. I spent three days last summer at the Electric Health Resort and since that time I have felt no symptoms of rheumatism. I attribute my cure to the Electric Rooms, although I had no faith in them before going there. M. J. ROSSMAN.

PLUM BRANCH, S. C., March 10, 1888.—Mr. ames A. Benson, President: Dear Sir—I take the liberty of adding my experience to that of others who have been benefited by the famous Electric Health Resort. For over twenty years I had been a constant sufferer from a kidney complaint and began to think I would never obtain relief. I visited Hillman's and my testimonial is, (and I desire to make it most emphatic) that nearly a complete cure most emphatic) that nearly a complete cure was effected. I stayed only a few days and am satisfied that a short while longer would have performed a perfect cure. I intend mak-ing another visit soon.

The Electric Rooms.

The Electric Rooms (or Shaft) are three compartments in an excavation fifty feet long, twelve feet wide, and from eight to fourteen feet deep, made in the side of the hill known as the "Electric Mound." The Southern wall of the excavation is composed of an Alum Rock, extending the full length of the compartments. In this Rock the ELECTRIC PROTERTY resides.

The whole is enclosed by a neat frame building, provided with a pleasant sitting room, thus affording the patient comfortable protection against inclement weather.

The treating of patients consists of sitting in the Electric Rooms two or three hours daily, getting the benefit of the Electric Currents and drinking freely of the Electrified Water.

No artificial means used whatever.

Accommodations.

The recently erected Electric Mound Hotel is a 44 room house, modern in its construction and conveniences, of new and improved equipment, an excellent table and superior service. Bath rooms, provided with hot and cold water, are conveniently ranged on each floor, and a supply of pure free stone water is forced by steam power a distance of twenty-three hundred feet to the summit of the hill upon which the hotel stands.

It is within a few hundred yards of the elec-ric rooms, and about a third of a mile from Rilman station.

Admission—Electric Rooms—$1.00, which gives privilege for the whole day.

Rates at Hotel

THE SOUTH'S ENEMIES

Arp Says Something About Ingalls and Sherman,

Who Take Every Oceasion to Villify the Southern People-A Good Letter from the Georgia Philosopher.

neander around and then come back and take a new start. They will do this in spite of us and we wonder how they got away off from the matter we were thinking about. But there is always some provocation or they woulden't go. I was ruminating about Senator Ingalls and his great learning and scholarship and wonderful gifts as an orator and thinker. I was wondering how he could prostitute those talents to the low-down, mean contemptible new start. They will do this in spite of us talents to the low-down, mean, contemptible business of slandering the south and manufacturing willful and malicious lies about our peo-ple. Then I thought of John Sherman in the same connexion and it seemed to me a monstresity that men should have such brains and the devil control their hearts.

How is that? I asked a little boy one day what kind of a dog that was that was following him and he said "that dog is half terrier." "What is the other half?" said I. The boy looked surprised and hesi-tated as he said, "nothing but dog, I reckon." And that is the trouble with these great men who are so mean. They are one-half terrier and the other half dog. I was traveling not long ago with Sanford Bell, the reverend veteran of all conductors, and some consequential darkies demanded that the white men should be expelled from their car. Sanford said, "well, that is all right. They must go if you say so," and so he politely invited us all out, and we acquiesced with a good grace; but there was a curious looking, measley pided, ginger cake fellow, who didn't vacate, and one of the darkies hunted up Sanford and complained that there was still one man left. Sanford went back and inspected him. He looked inquiringly at his face, and the back of his head, and the shape of his feet, and finally addressed him and said: "My friend, are you a white man?" "Naw," said the mongrel. "Well, what are you?" said Sanford. "Me mudder Potugee and me fadder a nagar," he said. Sanford turned solemnly to the darkies and said: "How's that?" and they subsided. There are some strange mixtures in our humanity. Talents go a long ways to atone for rascality and meanness, and always will, I reckon. Lord Bacon took bribes, and so some of the greatest minds in the nation have stooped to iniquity that would send a common man to the chaingang.

Mercury was the God of letters and astronomy and eloquence and music but he was at the same time the patron of fraud and perjury. He wore sandals to keep his footsteps from being discovered. He stole some oxen from Apollo and when the theft was proved on him he went to playing on the lyre and his music so delighted Apollo that he let him keep the oxen. And just so these modern men like Blaine and Ingalls and Sherman play—the liar and so tickle the people with their eloquence that they let them keep the oxen.

But the late assaults of Ingalls and Sherman seem to come more from hate than policy. We can understand why the ignorant people of the north still hate us but why an intelligent well informed man should do so passeth all comprehension.

Now, there is Senator Ingalls, who, next to the pre who are so mean. They are one-half terrier and the other half dog. I was traveling not long ago with Sanford Bell, the reverend Sherman have each got one fifty cubics high in their back yards.

Let the comedy go on until the tragedy begins. I was looking over a northern paper yesterday that abounded in figures and statistics. It gave probabilities of the south, and think of it; 260 per cent in eight years, and the other southern states coming along rapidly. It will be a great while before Haman hangs Mordecai. He is still sitting at the king's gate and is biding his time. Grover and Frances are all right. When Grover returned from his late trip down south, Senator Colquitt said: "Well, Mr. Cleveland, what do you and Mrs. Cleveland think of the south now?" Grover squeezed the senator's hand and said: "She is solid;" and Mrs. Cleveland squeezed his other hand and said: "Keep her so, senator."

"She is solid;" and Mrs. Cleveland squeezed his other hand and said: "Keep her so, senator."

It is the first visited the Electric Health Resort in February, 1887. She spent three hours in the day for six days. She returned home very much improved. She made another visit to the Resort in June following, remaining three days, using the water freely. She returned home and since then has not complained of rheumatism. I would encourage all sufferers from such afflictions to avail themselves of the benefits of the Electric Health Resort.

Mr. B. F. Brown: Dear Sir—This certifies that during last May I was stricken with severe mervous prostration, was confined to my room for three months, and to my bed for the greater part of the time. About the 20th of August I went to the "Hillman Shaft" (Electric Resort.) and after spending four days there found that I was completely cured, and have been entirely well ever since then. The cure in my case was a great wonder to me and my friends, and I am a strong believer in the virtues of the place. (Signed) Mrs. J. K. Durs., January 23, 1888. Greenwood, S. C.

The Electric Rooms.

The Electric Rooms (or Shaft) are three compartments in an excavation fifty feet long, and we did not speak for three months; and one night we happened to meet in a hotel in New York, and the same emoti to each other, and he said, 'God bless you major, I am glad to see you,' and I said as much to bim, and we made it all up and never got mad any more. But I know folks who have poison bags right under their eyes, and they carry their hatred for years and years. It is constitutional and they can't help it. Now, if Ingalls were to come down here and show a kindly, brotherly feeling, our people would forget and forgive every slander he ever uttered. Why, old Tecumseh came down here some years ago, and our people toted him around in a carriage and wined him aud dined him, but we are not going to do it any more, for he went back and abused us and told lies on Hampton. They may fool us once or twice, but they can't fool us three times.

You Can't Make a Samson Out of an attenuated dude, with meagre legs, pigeon chest and a slight cough. But a man or woman to whom constitutional vigor has been denied can get it to a very considerable extent by the persistent use, in regularly proportioned, alternated doses, of America's chief tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. To the nerves and muscles of the stomach that genial invigorant imparts tone, and to its operations regularity. The proximate result is thorough digestion and complete assimilation of the food, and the ultimate sequence, blood fertile with the elements of muscular tissue, a heatthy appetite, nightly rest unimpaired, and a disappearance of the nervous symptoms to which etiolated invalids are always subject, and which they are very prone to take for the manifestations of serious organic disease, and does accordingly. In diseases of the kidners and bladder, always excessively weakening, and for constipation, fever and ague, and liver complaint, use the Bitters. been denied can get it to a very considerable

The majority of commission houses are, of course, bullish in their proclivities, since it is only a bull market that Frings an abundant grist to their doors, hence a dull and declining market, running over a good many months, in many cases has practically exhausted their stock of arguments in favor of better times. One of them, and in this case the lack of material may to some people seem absolute, has fallen back upon "Benner's Prophecies," a little book compiled by Samuel Benner, the "Ohio Farmer." The book is best known to Wall street as "Cammack's Bible," since the veteran and typical bear is largely responsible for the circulation the bear is lately responsible for the circulation the book has obtained in Wall street, and besides the big bruin swears that he believes in Benner, and best upon his prediction. Medicine for Throat and Lung Difficulties has long been, and still is, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs: allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for dis-esses of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy. "My wife had a distressing cough, with pains in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has cured her. "Six months ago I had a severe hem-orrhage of the lungs, brought on by an incessant cough which deprived me of sleep and rest. I tried various reme-dies, but obtained no relief until I be-gan to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few bottles of this mediene cured me." Mrs. E. Cobarn, 19 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

"For children afflicted with colds, coughs, sore throat, or croup, I do not know of any remedy which will give more speedy relief then Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have found it, also, invaluable in cases of Whooping Cough."—Ann Lovejoy, 1257 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

THE PUBLIC

IS PARTICULARLY CAUTIONED AGAINST A PHILADELPHIA BEER WHICH IS BEING FOISTED UPON UNWARY PURCHASERS AS THE GENUINE IMPORTED

JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT!

The article in question is put up in a Squatty Bottle, with German and English labeliprinted in blue and the cork covered with yellow wax, giving the package a German appearance.

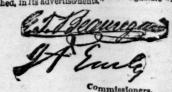

The unsurpassed efficiency of the corporation pushing these goods in calling their domestic beer "Genuine Imported Malt Extract," and their appeals to the cupidity of certain classes of Tradesmen by free gifts of one hundred bottles and upward to those who can be induced to purchase their goods, may cause this Américan beer to be palmed off on the unwary. PLUNKETT'S TALK.

Plunkett and Brown Discuss Old Times.

New On

The Pleasures of Eural Pursuits not Approached by City Life-A Cool but Hungry Soldier.

"Its healthy to get up early in the morning,"

back in the corner.
"That's so," spoke Brown, "but I can rember mighty well how hard it used to be member mighty well now hard to used to be for dad to get we boys up in the mornings, and it seems like I can hear his voice now as he hollers out: 'Billie, get up, son,' 'Billie, oh, Billie, get up, son, and make er fire;' 'Billie, Billie, I say, Billie!' I'd hear every word he'd say and heard him the first time he called, but I never would say er thing, till pretty soon but I never would say er thing, till pretty soon he'd yell out: 'Bill, Bill, you lazy rascal, get outen that bed or I'll be in there and frail thunder outen you in er minite!' That always fotch me, and there haint no boy that knows how sweet sleep is lessen he's had er dad to make him get up early in the morning."

"I know all erbout that 'possuming' busines," answered Planket, with a smile, "but arter you was up and get your face washed and jumped erround er little to take the stiffness outen your legs, you felt better and thar warn't so many doctors made er living them days as there is now, and there wasn't so much of this going to town to clerk ermong the youngsters, going to town to clerk ermong the youngsters, and er wearing of these store bought clothes and walking with er little old walking stick. The boys of these times like these sort, er things, but I can tell 'em that they have never tasted of the joys common to the boys who wore the copperas pants held up by one gallas, who saw the sun rise from his work in the field and watched his dog arter the branch rabbit across the ployed ground. arter the branch rabbit across the plowed ground and listened to the melody of the songs that would sound from adjoining fields and the plow-boy's 'Wo—gee!" 'Wo—haw!' 'Git up,' Mike!' and sich—thar's no sich pleasures to be had in the cities. "Folks had er plenty them days, and they made it at home, and neighbors went to each other's houses, and they didn't feel like not eating enough when they set down at the table, and you didn't see no little old tin pan with shelled corn in it to feed the horses on, but great big ears were tumbled into the troughs without any counting, and fodder was pitched outen the loft as long as er horse would eat, and I never heared tell of one of these bales of

"But they made the children wait till the old folks got through cating," said Brown, "and the hardest feeling I ever had ergin anybody, 'cepting conscript officers and yankees, was ergin the preachers and highfalutin company that would cause me to have to wait. I've watched em er many er time, through er crack in the dining-room door, as they'd take the chicken outen the dish and smack their lips over the good things when I'd be so hungry that I could er eat er piece er dog, but I knowed better than to whimper, and it was mighty seldom that ever me or any other chap of my day got her lick at the preserves-they were ingenerally took offen the table when the children's turn came erround and kept outen sight till the next meeting day."

"The first ever I knowed of this shelled corn business."

business," resumed Plunkett without seeming to notice Brown's interruption, "was in 1859-the year of the comets that brought on the war. That was er dry year in Georgia, and there was hardly any corn made and so in '60 we had the first of this shipped corn that ever I seed and I wish it had er been the last. We didn't make enough corn for seed and we had to plant the bought corn and it was called 'Lincoln corn,' and it come up and tassled out at erbout knee-high and made er little old yaller public that warn't fit for turkey bait, and I bleve that was the begining of trouble that I'm erfeared I'll not live to see pass 'erway-

I've seed 'er many hungry person since then and I never seed any before."

"Cepting waiting children," suggested "I heard of er soldier," resumed Plunkett, "that went up to er house in Tennessee and axed for something to eat, and the lady told him certainly, certainly, but you'll have to wait for the second table, as I have distinguished guests to dine with me today.' The fellow said he'd wait and he took his seat on er bench out in the back porch where he could look right in on the table, and as they begin to bring in the good things and place em on the table he seed em and smelt em and it was too much for him, he couldn't stand it, so he jist walked in and took one of the chairs at the table. In er minit here come the lady and her 'distinguished guests,' and thar set the soldier as solemn as er judge. The lady begin to turn red in the face and to hum and haw but the soldier didn't let on and one of the 'distinguished' was without er place to eat and he had to turn back and wait. The officer what set next to the soldier took er notion there was something wrong er-bout the matter, so he turned to the soldier and axed him what command he belonged to.

The soldier answered his question and then the "Do you know who you have the honor of

"No, sir," said the soldier, looking at the stars of a general's rank on the speaker's col-"'Well, sir,' proceeded the officer, 'you dine with General Magruder-I am General Ma-"Oh, never mind," spoke the soldier. "I nsed to be particular erbout who I associated with, but since the war I don't care er cent."

"I seed er hungry soldier at er table-once, said Brown, showing a disposition to cope with Plunkett, "it was at er mighty good old deacon's table; and the deacon was never knowed to eat without er great long grace, but no sooner than they took their seats at the table, than the soldier jist lit right in to the first thing he could lay his hands on, and the old deacon looked, and the soldier had his mouth pretty close down to his plate, and was or putting the eating erway; the deacen hum-ed and hawed, but the soldier jist reached over ed and hawed, but the soldier jist reached over and got some more, when the deacon, with a mighty red face, 'lowed:

""We're in the habit of saying something here K foro we go to eating'—meaning grace.

"Jist say what you please,' answered the soldier, 'you can't turn my stomach. I'm used to it,' and then he reached for some more of the eating, and the deacon and his whole family set there without turning ever their plates and seed the soldier swipe the last thing from the table."

"Well," said Plunkett, as Brown cased to talk, "I was jist er thinking erbout the old times, and my mind wandered.

"I've rambled over the old homeplace today. I've jumped the ditches and roifed on the grass where I played with little Nell; I have swung on the coupling-pole of the wagon as it jolted over the cotton rows; I have patted the sand on little Nell's foot and hards making frog houses, and raced with her down the path when the old dinner-horn blowed to meet the hands from the fields, I have knelt with her over the doodle-holes, and heard her sweet little voice say doodle, doedle, doedle doodle, doedle floodle, doedle I have sweet little voice say doodle, doedle, doedle toodle, doedle I have sweet little voice say doodle, doedle, doedle toodle, doedle I have sweet little voice say doodle, doedle, doedle toodle of the the shuttle that would fly from her to get her the shuttle that would fly from her oget her the shuttle that would fly from he hand. These things have passed, but I cling to their memory, and the last song I ever heard little Nell sing comes to me as fresh as the pay she sang and makes it seem like phophecy;

Same day it shall not be as now,
Your strong hand rove a try brow;
You'll take from these some silken tress,
And leave the rest in silentness.
Remembering how I used to say,
You'll think of this again some day;
Remembering how I used to say,
You'll think of me again some day.

Plunkett and Brown Discuss Old Times.

of Rural Pursuits not Approached by City Life-A Cool but Hungry Soldier.

"Its healthy to get up early in the morning," said Plunket, as he turned his chair and leaned back in the corner.

"That's so," spoke Brown, "but I can remember mighty well how hard it used to be for dad to get we boys up in the mornings, and it seems like I can hear his voice now as he hollers out: 'Billie, get up, son,' 'Billie, oh, Billie, get up, son, and make er fire; 'Billie, Billie, I say, Billie!' I'd hear every word he'd say and heard him the first time he called, but I never would say er thing, till pretty soon he'd yell out: 'Bill, Bill, you lazy rascal, get outen that bed or I'll be in there and frail outen that bed of I'll be in there and trail thunder outen you in er minite!" That always fotch me, and there haint no boy that knows how sweet sleep is lessen he's had er dad to make him get up early in the morning."

"I know all erbout that 'possuming' busines," answered Plunket, with a smile, "but arter you was up and got your face washed and jumped erround er little to take the stiffness outen your legs, you felt better and thar warn't so many doctors made er living them days as there is now, and there wasn't so much of this going to town to clerk ermong the youngsters, and er wearing of these store bought clothes and walking with er little old walking stick. The boys of these times like these sort er things, but I can tell 'em that they have never tasted of the joys common to the boys who were the copperas pants held up by one gallas, who saw the sun rise from his work in the field and watched his dog arter the branch rabbit across the plowed ground and listened to the melody of the songs that would sound from adjoining fields and the plow-boy's 'Wo—gee!' 'Wo—haw!' 'Git up, Mike!' and sich—thar's no sich pleasures to be made it at home, and neighbors went to each other's houses, and they didn't feel like not cating enough when they set down at the table, and you didn't see no little old tin pan with shelled corn in it to feed the horses on, but great big ears were tumbled into the troughs without any counting, and fodder was pitched outen the loft as long as er horse would eat, and I never heared tell of one of these bales of

But they made the children wait till the old folks got through cating," said Brown, "and the hardest feeling I ever had ergin any-"and the hardest feeling I ever had ergin any-body, 'cepting conscript officers and yankees, was ergin the preachers and highfalutin com-pany that would cause me to have to wait. I've watched em er many er time, through er crack in the dining-room door, as they'd take the chicken outen the dish and smack their lips over the good things when I'd be so hungry that I could er eat er piece er dog, but I knowed better than to whimper, and it was mighty soldom that ever me or any other chap of my day got her lick at the preserves—they were ingenerally took offen the table when the children's turn came erround and kept outen sight till the next meeting day."

"The first ever I knowed of this shelled corn business," resumed Plunkett without seeming to notice Brown's interruption, "was in 1859— the year of the comets that brought on the war. That was er dry year in Georgia, and there was hardly any corn made and so in '60 we had the first of this shipped corn that ever I seed and I wish it had or been the last. We didn't make enough corn for seed and we had to plant the bought corn and it was called 'Lincoln corn,' and it come up and tassled out at erbout knoe-high and made er little old yaller 'bleve that was the begining of trouble that I'm erfcared I'll not live to see pass 'erway-I've seed 'er many hungry person since then and I never seed any before."

"Cepting waiting children," suggested "I heard of er soldier," resumed Plunkett. "that went up to er house in Tennessee and axed for something to eat, and the lady told him 'certainly, certainly, but you'll have to wait for the second table, as I have distin-guished guests to dine with me today.' The fellow said he'd wait and he took his seat on er bench out in the back porch where he could look right in on the table, and as they begin to bring in the good things and place em on the table he seed em and smelt em and it was fist walked in and took one of the chairs at the Jist water in and took one of the chairs at the table. In er minit here come the lady and her 'distinguished guests,' and' thar set the soldier as solemn thar set the soldier as solemn as er judge. The lady begin to turn red in the face and to hum and haw but the soldier didn't let on and one of the 'distinguished' was without er place to eat and he had to turn back and wait. The officer what set next to the soldier took er notion there was something wrong erbout the matter, so he turned to the soldier and axed him what command he belonged to. The soldier answered his question and then the "Do you know who you have the honor of "No, sir," said the soldier, looking at the stars of a general's rank on the speaker's col-

"'Well, sir,' proceeded the officer, 'you dine with General Magruder—I am General Ma-

"Oh, never mind," spoke the soldier, "I used to be particular erbout who I associated with, but since the war I don't care er cent."

"I seed er hungry soldier at er table-once, said Brown, showing a disposition to cope with said Brown, showing a disposition to cope with Plunkett, "it was at er mighty good old deacon's table; and the deacon was never knowed to eat without er great long grace, but no sooner than they took their seats at the table, than the soldier jist lit right in to the first thing he could lay his hands on, and the old deacon looked, and the soldier had his mouth pretty close down to his plate, and was er putting the eating erway; the deacon hum. er putting the eating erway; the deacon hum-ed and hawed, but the soldier jist reached over and got some more, when the deacen, with a mighty red face, 'lowed:

and got some more, when the deacen, with a mighty red face, 'lowed:

"We're in the habit of saying something here fore we go to eating'—meaning grace.

"Jist say what you please,' answered the soldier, 'you can't turn my stomach. I'm used to it,' and then he reached for some more of the eating, and the deacen and his whole family set there without turning over their plates and seed the soldier twice the last thing from the table."

"Well," said Plunkett, as Brown ceased to talk, "I wus jist er thinking erbout the old times, and my mind wandered.

"I've rambled over the old homeplace today. I've jumped the ditches and rolled on the grass where I played with little Nell; I have swung on the coupling-pole of the wagon as it jolted over the cotton rows; I have patted the sand on little Nell's foot and hands making frog houses, and raced with her down the path when the old dinner-horn blowed to meet the hands from the fields, I have knelt with her over the doodle-holes, and heard her sweet little voice say doodle, doodle, doodle, doodle doom room with mother, and hopped erround as pert as er cricket to get her the shuttle that would fly from her hand. These things have passed, but I cling to their memory, and the last song I ever heard little Nell sing comes to me as fresh as the pay she sang and makes it seem like phophecy;

"Some day it shall not be as now."

Some day it shall not be as now,
Your strong hand rove about my brow;
You'll take from these some silken tress,
And leave the rest in silentness.
Remembering how I used to say,
You'll think of this again some day;
Remembering how I used to say,
You'll think of me again some day.'

THE WAY TO SUCCEED.

New Orleans Breaking Loose from the Thral-dom of Old Ways,

NEW ORLEARS, La., March 21.—Editors Constitution: In common with others who have been visiting New Orleans for many years and watching for deep of progress, I had come to the conclusion may it had so long depended upon commerce in an old logy way and was so little awake to the vantages of manufacturing that it was only a lession of decadence, not of growth. While its old buildings were going to decay, almost me all of buildings were going to decay, almost me and of decadence, not of growth. While its old buildings were going to decay, almost me and the control that used to come to it by the away the cotton that used to come to it by the away the cotton that used to come to it by the gray of the cotton of the come of the come of the cotton of the come of the cotton of the come of the cotton of the cotton tures at his extensive works in another part of the city.

I found him a middle-aged man of affairs, courteous, but as decisive as a steel trap. "Come with me," said he, "to the chamber of commerce and I'll introduce you to our secretary, D. L. Mitchell. He'll tell you all about it." As I went with him at a two-forty gait one block and up two flights of stairs, he crammed me with cold facts as capable of expansion as H. I. Kimball's "anhydrous ammonia," but more warming in their effects. Introducing me to Mr. Mitchell and cordially bidding me to wake myself at home there whenever I came to the city, he hurried off to his machine shops, leaving me to enjoy a three whenever I came to the city, he hurried off to his machine shops, leaving me to enjoy a three hours love feast of figures with the secretary. The following facts gleaned from this interview, will be likely to interest your readers:

The New Orleans chamber of commerce was organized in 1824. Its decisions for years were regarded so important that they were bound and referred to with the veneration due to law books. Since the war, under the management of theorists, it dwindled to a membership of fifty-five, and besides seeming dead, was in debt.

Last June the present board of officers was elected—all practical men—headed by Mr. Coleman who, as I have intimated, is a pushing, level-headed business man that goes for practical results like a locomotive on steel rails. Mr. Mitchell, the secretary, has grown gray in journalism and was taken from the Times-Democrat to give his whole time to this work. The chamber has now 226 live members, and is making itself felt on all the business questions of the city and state, gathering facts, discussing making itself left on all the business questions of the city and state, gathering facts, discussing them, and pushing up the officials and members of congress to vigorous action. It goes for Randall's tariff bill, encourages immigration to Louisiana and invites manufacturing capital to New Orleans, for which no municipal tax or liceuse is here demanded and with such tax or license is here demanded and with such success that the manufacturing capital of the city bids fair to grow from $8,500,000 in 1880 to $30,000,000 in 1890. As savings banks from previous bad management are in bad odor they encourage wage-earners to invest savings in homestead associations, and own their own homes. Over $600,000 were last year put into the eighteen or twenty associations of this sort, in New Orleans, and the amount so invested is steadily increasing.

THE COST OF LIVING IN NEW ORLEANS, are interesting, and I quote them for study and comparison with the cost in Atlanta and other cities.

comparison with the cost in Atlanta and other cities.

In getting data upon this subject, Mr. Mitchell took pains to consult not only families, but to verify their statements from house renters, market men, grocers, butchers, shoe dealers, hatters, dry goods men, clothiers, etc. The result of many days of labor, united with practical experience and good judgment, is compressed into the few following lines, and these figures are worthy of preservation and study. He says the difference between the cost of food for a family of five and a family of soven persons is hardly appreciable, but in the matter of dry goods for the females in the family it is hard to arrive at exact figures, because in some families they make and fit their own dresses while in others they hire it done. We tall then a family of five—father, mother and three children. The father, an ordinary artisan, earning $2.374 and another member of the family earning 75 cents a day for 250 days in the year. The expenses of such a family for the year may be put down as follows:

House rent from $5 to $16 a month, average

House rent from $3 to $15 a month, average $11.50 a month $133 00

Fuel, two fires, $5 each 10 00

Food, including entire table expenses $1 a Food, including entire table expenses $1 a day.
Shoes, 8 pairs for man at $2.50. $7.50 shoes, 3 pairs for monat $1.70. $5.55 shoes, 1 dozen pairs for 8 children $48.40 Dry goods, not including dressmaking.
Other clothing.

$781 25

Net gain for the year $115,00.

If there is only one wage earner in the family it will be seen that he must earn more, or the family must live on less to avoid a deficit at the end of the year. That the above estimate is not far wrong is proved by the testimony of the traders that the laboring classes in the main pay promptly and their investments in homestead associations and otherwise shows a fair margin.

In speaking of the rehabilitation of the south since the war, Mr. Mitchel said: "When I saw in Augusta a son of Bishop Elliott doff his confederate uniform and put the horse that he rode from Appomattox between the shafs of a common dray and, in a coarse garb, solicit loads to haul as a means of supporting the family, and when, later, I saw here in New Orleans, the highly educated son of an honored and formerly wealthy judge, three piece of prairie just outside the city and take in mules, cows and other animals to pasture at so much a week or month, I knew that the resurrection morn of the south had come." Another instance of pluck in the young men of New Orleans, he said, was shown when the exposition buildings were erected here in 1884.

It was thought that for so unusual an enterprise many carpenters must be brought from abroad, but said he: "1,700 young men of New Orleans presented themselves armed with saws, jackplanes and hammers and were enrolled as carpenters. They were not very skillful, it is true but they filled the gap and what is more proved their manhood."

New Orleans aspires to be the great distrbuting point for Mexico, the Isthmus and the South American states. One prominent gentleman here interested in a railroad to Honduras said to me: "It will not be more than ten years before Mexico peaceably comes into the union." Another project that this city is agitating is the improvement of the Warrior river to Mobile, then an inland waterway from thee west end of this lake through only five miles of mud to the Mississippi river, as the surface of the river is usually above that of the lake, one o

For The Nervous The Debilitated The Aged.

Medical and scientific skill has at last solved the problem of the long needed medicine for the nervous, debilitated, and the aged, by combining the best nerve tonics, Celery and Cocs, with other effective remedies, which, acting gently but efficiently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, remove disease, restore strength and renew vitality. This medicine is

It fills a place herotofore unoccupied, and marks a new era in the treatment of nervous troubles. Overwork, anxiety, disease, lay the foundation of nervous prostretion and weakness, and experience has shown that the usual remedies do not mend the strain and paralysis of the nervous system.

EDISON'S INVENTION. The Magician of Menlo Park Helping the Georgians. Professor Edison's Wonderful Plan for Sav-ing Fine Gold and Reducing Rebel-licus or Refractory Gold Ores.

Ing Fine Gold and Reducing Rebellicus or Refractory Gold Ores.

New Yorks, March 17.— [Special.] — Mr. Thos. A. Edison has just invented an electrical machine for separating the gold from the sulphur and arsinle in ores known among mining experts at sulphurests or rebellious ores. The eastern slope os the Aleghanies contains large quantities of this ce, which has not been mined because the gold could not be separated from the impurities in the ore. By the aid of this machine the impurities can be semowed, and all hough the amount of gold obtained is small, yet the sulphur and arsenie can be sold and make the working of the ore profitable. Mr. Edison por oses buying this ore at the mines provided he can get it at a reasonable price, and slipping it to his laboratory at Orange, Now Jersey, and there separate the gold from the impurities.

He has asked me to take charge of the business and I have loday mailed you some printed instructions for ship, ing the ore, which I hope you will publish to that the information may reach all owners of mines. The owners of mines which have been abundoned because the ore was not rich enough to work, by sending samples may make some money selling the ore, as we will take all the ore they cut supply, provided the price is such that we can work it profitably. We are prepared to handle large quantities of the ore and I hope the people will respond promptly to this notice. Yours $15.6.

SHEPHERD'S SONG.

The Sad Story of a Talented Writer.

THE PRICE FOR SHEPHERD'S POEM. Spent in Drink, Which Caused His Death in the Gutter-Searching His Trunk.

New York, March 23.—[Special.]—Nat. G. Shepherd was one of the celebrated Pfaff ecterie of literary bohemians. His name is frequently mentioned, by survivors of that brilliant but dissipated set, along with those of Artemus Ward, George Arnold, Miles O'Reilly, Edward House and others. One day Shepherd took a poem to the office of Appleton's Journal, a literary weekly of twenty years ago, sold the verses to Editor O. B. Bunce for $10, got drunk as quickly as possible with the money, and died within two days, in the gutter. This is recalled by those who knew of it then as an incident in the brief history of a clique of talented men, who lived a sort of life happily no longer common to authors in New York.

The ransacking of an old trunk that had lain, nobody knows how long, in the attic of an uptown boarding house, has brought to light an interesting, if somewhat dismal, romance that extends back to that death poem of Shepherd's. This trunk was only one of several such articles that had accumulated during the landlady's business career. Each one represented the person of some boarder of the past, defunct if not in the actual, at least relatively to her profit and loss account. Some of them, doubtless, had been retained by force and arms in order thus to bring to terms recalcitrant lodgers; others had been left a voluntary pawn for unpaid bills; and others still had been forgotten, or neglected by their former owners. It came into the landlady's head, the other day, that it would be worth an hour's exertion to examine the property that cumbered her attic, and dispose of the bulk of it to make room for modern accretions to the supply. True, every one of them had been realized slight additions to her increase whether temples were there if every true. of their respective acpture, and from some had been realized slight additions to her income; but the trunks were there, if empty, and many of them suggested no remembrance, no vaguely defined features of their quondam no vaguely defined features of their quondam possessors.

Such was the case concerning the trunk of which this narrative is written. When the landlady raised its lid, in the course of her search, she could not for her life recall the absentee who had left it on her hands. A sight of a confusion of papers and letters, however, brought to mind how a lodger of many years ago had disappeared one day never to return. His account had been squared the day previous, and as he had been fairly prompt in making payments, the landlady had held his room for him more than a month and refused several offers for it. At last she became weary of waiting, tucked his trunk into the attic, let the room, and thought little of it, until a few weeks later she read of the discovery of her lodger's body in the river. It had been identified by papers in his pockets. It was an old newspaper in which she read this, dated within a week of the disappearance. So it had dropped out of public attention. She opened the trunk to see if it contained anything that relatives of the dead man might desire—a vain search for the un-faith in the American musical market sadly shaken, he had hit upon en idea upon which he had to stake his desires and even his life. This idea can be given best in a letter which he wrote to Sam Sharpley, who at that time had his negro minstrels in a Broadway hall. It had been returned to him with a note from Sharpley scrawled upon its back. Thit was Amecker's letter:

My Dear Sir, I wish to submit to you the enclosed song for the purpose of having it sung in your minstrel entertainment. It has a peculiar history, and it seems to me the composition would make a hit if the story should be printed on the programmes. The words were written, as you will see, by Mr. Nat G. Shepherd. Ho was a literary man, but dissipated and very poor. Somebody told him about seeing, hung up in the morgue, the clothes that had been taken from an unidentified body of a young girl found in the river. The garments were kept that friends or relatives might learn the fate and declare the name of the unhappy victim. No one ever recognized them. Mr. Shepherd wrote the poem about them and took it to Appleton's Journal. The verses were accepted and published and paid for, and I understand that Mr. Shepherd clook the money they brought him and spent it for liquor, going into such a terrible intoxication that he died in the gutter from its effect, so that his own body was taken to the morgue. Now, sir, I have taken the poem and made a slight change in it, adding the refrain, so that it might be singable), and I wish to say to you that this melancholy history will be given an additional shade of gloom if the song fails of acceptance. For I am at the end of my rescurces. My money is almost gone, and I cannot sell my producious. I assure you, sir, that if this muste is not speedily taken I shall have to consign myself also to the river, and my body too will pass through the morgue on its way to a pauper's grave. I beseech you, sir, to give this piece a trial, and thus help a man who has suffered much to gain not merely a living, but to establish a

The letter was in German, and the negro minstrel's note in English was as follows:

J. Arnecker—Sir: I had to hunt up a Dutchman to give me any notion of what your screed meant. I can't write your language, but I can speak plainly in my own. Do not think you are the only man who meets bad luck. Becauss you meet it don't sit down and cry over it. I you tumble into the river some day it won't be my fault. I can't use your song, and it may comfort you to know that one reason—if there wasn't any other—is that I have failed in the minstrel business. My company disbands this week. Yours truly, SAM SHARPLEY.

The penciled note was not dated, and it may be that, sick with waiting, Arnecker was unable to endure the blow of rejection; it may be that he sent the piece to other managers, or publishers, though his account book has no such entry; at all events, the episode was terminated as he had threatened, and his body went to Potter's field, via the dismal morgue. Shepherd's verses as published in Appleton's Journal, had four lines each. Arnecker's music required their formation into longer stanzas, and the addition of a refrain to each. In that shape, and with music, they are here given:

ONLY THE CLOTHES THAT SHE WORE.
On the morgue wall
Hang things that recall
The girl who was found lying dead on the ground,
And to whom they gave a Potter's field grave.
A month now has passed,
And of her history all is a myslery;
But these are kept still, and will be until Hope dies out at last.
Of the dead girl's try they have no more—
Only the clothes that she wore. ONLY THE CLOTHES THAT SHE WORE.

The gloves lie there,
So slender and fair,
And in them lingers the shape of fingers
That some one has pressed perhaps, and caressed
And these are the shoes,
With silken laces, still bearing traces fortunate's body had been consigned without protest to potter's field. She saw only scraps of paper, music, and letters, none of which she examined carefully, until her recent investigation. For unimportant reasons, the writer took a hand in the later search, and the result was this story of her lodger.

His name was Julius Arnecker. He had come from Germany in 1866, and it appeared, from certain letters in the trunk, that he had fled to avoid service in the army during the Austrian war of that year. There was no diary, or daily journal to give a plain account of his life, but on the margin of some letters from home, he had jotted down suggestive sentences in German, and on the many music manuscripts were noted dates and circumstances of composition; and besides these data was a small blank book containing a record of his business with publishers. That he had had a hard time of it was evident from this account book; for of all the manuscripts entered upon it, there were only three that were marked "accepted," and only two that had been paid for. A slight source of income, apparently, had been arranging airs for popular instruments and scoring for small orchestras, the inevitable hack work by which impoverished composers seek to earn a living.

So much for his circumstances. It is evident that he had a love affair, that the great object of his exertions was to make money enough to send for his sweetheart in Germany; but this is not a love story, and that phase of the subject will be touched upon only as it affected incidentally the main incident developed by the search through the trunk. It seems that after many discouragements, his

All else you may guess. Or does the shawl

Mutely appealing to some hidden feeling,
A form young and slight to memory's sight
Should surely recall.

Ah, here's a ring,
A frail, pretty thing,
We were forgetting, with a pearl setting;
There was but this one—of name or date? None,
A keepsake, may be,
Gift of another, gift of a brother,
Or lover, who knows? Him her heart chose;
Or, was she heart free?

Was there foul play?
Or, was she the prey judged from his harsh note; but the write's was, and he sought to verify it. Appleton's Journal suspended publication years ago, but Editor O. B. Bunce is still employed by the publishing company. When he was asked about Shepherd's poem, he said:

"I remember the circumstances very well, although it was so many years ago; for I was considerably shocked by the outcome, feeling as if indirectly we had been connected with Shepherd's lamentable death. I do not now remember whether the poem came to us by mail, or whether it was brought in person, but I certainly did not see the author at that time. I read the poem and liked it, being struck by its singular pathos. I thought the incident related very touching—"Only the clothes that she wore"—signifying so much of misfortune and doubt. I decided to accept the verses and to publish them at an early date. I don't know how long after this it was, but I suppose it must have been no more than a few days, when Mr. Shepherd came in to learn the fate of his poem. He looked very seedy and dissipated. I almost regretted at the time I was to pay him any money, for I felt that it would be spent in debauchery. Of course this and my after feeling were merely sentiment, for I wanted the poem, and it did not concern me except to pay for it. I think I gave Mr. Shepherd an order on the cashier for ten dollars, though I may have paid the cash myself. At any rate, ten dollars was the price, and with the money the unfortunate man went out and drank himself to death. He was found dead in a gutter, and his body was taken to the morgue within forty-eight hours after he received his pay from us. We were all shocked at the episode. The poem was published in the number immediately following the incident."

The Use to which Convicts Put an Innocent Little Insect.

A common cockroach was trained to act as a letter carrier between William Rodifer and "Star-light Jack" Ryan, convicts in the southern Indiana penitentiary. It is probably the first instance on record, too, where there was any use found for this

Rodifer occupied a cell in the tier just above the one where Jack was confined, and for a long time they had no means of communicating with one another. Rodifer was a daring fellow, but he had another. Rodifer was a daring fellow, but he had not sufficient imagination to get up a plan of escape, and he relied on the bright mind of his friend "Starlight Jack" to suggest an idea.

One evening Rodifer noticed an innocent-looking cockroach running about the floor. After watching its gambolings for a time he concluded he would use it. So, writing a short note to his friend, he tied it to the cockroach's wing, and, kneeling down on the floor, he put it on the wall under the iron balcony in front of his cell. He calculated that it would run into the cell underneath. And it did. If Jack noticed the paper, caught the insect and Jack noticed the paper, caught the insect and read the note. Then he answered it, and poking the little creature out on the wall from the ceiling over the door he released it. Then the roach went n to Rodifer's cell and was caught. Then they fed and cared for it and used it in this manner for nths. In fact it grew to understand its

It must have been a female cockroach, however for one day it stopped to chat with a friend and was noticed by a warden. The note, which was written in some sort of cipher, was taken off, and the hos-pital steward, Dr. Sid C. McCure, read it. Then the beetle was put on the balcony floor, and it ran into Rodifer's cell. Thus the officials were kept posted as to the plans of the two famous gaol breakers.

After a time Jack began to suspect that something was wrong, and he added a postscript to his letter something like this: "If everything is right you will find a hair from my head in this note." The warden read it as he did the others, but dropped the hair and lost it. "Never mind it." said Captain Craig, whose hair was red; "put one of mine in it."
The answer came back: "That last whipping must have been an awful one, Jack, for it has changed the color of your hair." The scheming of these two worthies came to nought, however, and they served their terms.

STRANGE BEQUEST OF AN AGED LADY Dollars Willed to a Patent

It is a strange and curious fact that the wills of some people, made oftentimes when the very hand of death is upon them, are of death is upon them, are exceedingly peculiar. One lady wills a life interest in her estate to maintain her parrot; another to take care of all friendless cate; still another to found a home for homeless dogs; but the strangest bequest yet coming under our notice is that of a lady by the name of Buckland, living in Winona, Minnesota, who is supposed to have been in some way related to a doctor of the same name who died a score of years ago in Connec

It seems that the doctor, who was paralyzed,

name who died a score of years ago in Connecticut.

It seems that the doctor, who was paralyzed, after having been given up by the physician in attendance, succeeded in maturing a formula of his own, of which he cured himself of paralysis. The use and fame of this nervine spread slowly throughout the country, and a bottle of it came into thehands of the late Mrs. Buckland, of Winona, who, having a grandchild that had been paralyzed from birth, conceived the idea of trying it upon her, being impressed as much, perhaps, by the similarity of names between herself and that of the inventor of the reme dy, as from any other cause.

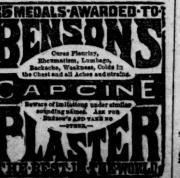

The surprising feature of the matter is that the girl, who was then a baby of lifteen months, was completely cured of her paralysis, and is today the healthy and blooming wife of a prominent merchant in Duluth, Minnesota. So monstrous became the faith of the old lady in the virtues of this nervine that, calling her lawyer, she made a will by which she left the sum of nearly half a million dollars to the proprietors of this remedy, with the proviso that every penny of it should be spent for the purpose of acquainting the people of the United States with its virtues.

The numerous and brilliant advortisements that have recently been appearing through the large newspapers of this country, are all the result, from a pecuniary point of view, of the magnanimity of this lady. There can be no question but that this remedy, Dr. Buckland's Scotch Oats Essence, is the greatest known general tonic and special nerve and brain invigorant. The names of those whom it has cured of both grave and simple nervous troubles is legion, and it has the special advantage of being wholly and absolutely free from narcotics, and purely vegetable.

The munificent sum placed at the disposal of the Scotch Oats Essence Co., by the late Mrs. Buckland, has enabled them to secure the services of some of the finest chemists Germany has ever produced, distilling and extracting apparatus of peculiar intricacy and value, and to twenty-eight years ago, it would have sived me $20.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) con menced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got undermy nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors at the section of the doctors and was because over a section.

It is a curious fact in this connection that experiments recently conducted in the school of Physiology, in Paris, France, have demonstrated beyond peradventure that the kernel of the oat contains three medicinal principles, the first of which acts to calm, soothe and tone up the brain and nerves; the second yielding phosphorous to weakened and hungry nerve tissues, and the third residing in the husk of the oat or oatmeal, to act as a laxative and anti-congestive on the stomach, liver and bowels.

but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ... and ... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors, and no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's, all I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two-cakes of CUTICURA FOAP. If you had been here and said you would have curied me for $200 GO you would. said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have hall the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Froriasis (picture number iw.). "How to Cure Ekin Diseases"), but now I am as clear agany person ever was. Through force of habit I rubmy hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in which hall the property of the picture. a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The stock market today was at first very weak, and lowest prices for the week were resched in many cases, but a sharp reaction occurred later and a majority of the lats show advances as a result of the day's operations. There was great anxiety to hear from Mr. Gould this morning, but no unformation was forthcoming and a determined drive was again made at Gould stocks and incidentally at the entire list. The opening was again weak at declines from last evening's closing figures extending to ½ per cent, and the attack at the opening drove Missouri Pacific down 4½ per cent, though the impression made upon the rest of the list was comined to fractional amounts. Union Pacific, Western Union and Louisville and Nashville being the heaviest sufferers. It soon became appa-

The list was combed to fractional amounts. Union Pacific, western Union and Louisville and Nashville being the heaviest sufferers. It soon became apparent that there was support in everything except Gond stocks, and later there were signs of buying eyen in those by interested parties, so the decline was soon checked and the list began to recover impadiately. Shorts covered freely and the advance was stopped only by the close of business, though the volume of lusiness after the ce line ceased underwent a marked decrease. Missouri Pacific, though remaining very feverish, recovered ell but $\frac{2}{2}$ per cent of its loss for the day, and among the general list New England became very conspicuous for its strength, advancing 2 points. Most of the list, however, were carried beyond the opening figures, Reading. Union Pacific, Western Union, Lack, awanna and St. Faul being the most prominent. The close was active and strong, generally at the highest prices of the day. Total sales amounted to 12,000 shares. Final changes are for fractions only, except a loss of 1 rer cent of Richmond and West Point preferred, and advances of 1½ in New England and 1½ in Kansss and Texas.

Finance and Commerce. Bonds, Stocks and Money. 9.41@ 9.43 CONSTITUTION OFFICE. The first of April, when all rich newspaper men and others have to show their wallets to the tax receiver, is near at hand, and non-taxable securities are therefore in demand. Georgia state bonds and Atlanta city bonds are both scarce and prices very firm. The four-half states are especially difficult to buy, the price having advanced about one per cent during the week. Other securities sell teadily, except Atlanta and West Foint stocz, which is freely offered. Why this stock should not be easy of sale we do not know, but a broker reports today that there are two or they hundred shares on the market at about 110. It has been a regular six per cent stock for years past and the prospect, as we understand it, is that dividends will be increased rather than diminished in fluture; certainly six per cent will be carred and paid and the stock is cheap if that be true. There is good demand for money and it will to be long before our banks will have an opportunity to put out all their surulus capital, though we know of no reason to apprehend unbusual stringency this summer. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, March 24—[Special.]—At the opening on 'change today there was every indication from the temper of the crowd tlat still lower points would be reached by the leading grains and provisions.

the temper of the crowd that still lower points would be reached by the leading grains and provisions. In fact, wheat opened one point lower than it had touched, May being quiet at 76%. The wheatmarket was at the mercy of manipulators at the start, but after the opening it was left to itself for a time, and May advanced to 76%. Weakness returned later with renewed selling by professionals, and the price of May was kert between 76%678% a greater part of the time until the close, which was at the latter figure.

After a somewhat irregular action the corn market closed 100% lower than he price of a week ago. Exports here this morning were less than expected, and additional trouble on the Burlington led to the belief that receipts would still be lighter for a time. The first action of the market was downward, however and continued pounding until May went from 43%600. Then it rallied to 50%c, the best figure of the day, and closed at 50%c.

Oats sold at or near last night's prices, clesing a shade firmer and higher. May sold at 50%60%c and closed at 50%c.

The bears included in another raid on provisions, and succeeded in forcing prices lower than at any previous time in months. Prok was the feature, and came out in large lots more rapidly than the operators expected. Margins have been called sharply of late, some being below $13.00. The small longs saw nothing in the situation to warrant holding, and unloaded. The opening sales were the highest, and the closing almost the lowest, showing a decline of 42%c from yesierday's closing figures. The shorts covered on the decline, and brokers supposed to represent the bulls also bought, but failed to sustain the market. May pork sold at $13.306/18.77% and closed at $13.37%. Lard brokers Thoward at 7.106.15 and closed at 7.10.

scene, a cloak of electric blue plush lined with chin-chilla für and an immense collar and border of the same. The removal of this wrap revealed a dress of amber satin with a front of beaded Brussels lace with train of silk tulle, a garniture of red popples.

In the second act she wore a white silk, with a front of silver gauze, demi-train of white tulle.

Moire ribbons and a deep border of tea roses completed this exquisite dress.

The third act revealed the heroine in a combina. tion gown of black and amber satin, trimmed with bats, her arm covered with great beaded net sleeves which, when extended, resembled the wings of

In the fourth act she wore an extraordinary costume, of which the lower skirt was of satin brocade, trimmed in waves of golden beads, and the tight-fitting bodies was covered with three glittering pendants. On the right arm was a short puffed sleeve, while the left was bare. From the left shoulder fell a drapery of white crepe, which, with the crepe overskirt and train, gave a very Grecian effect to the whole.

The fifth act being of a sombre turn, her dress was of black silk plush, with a front of solid jet, the bleves of Spanish lace in bat form.

Mr. H. P. Camp, the efficient chief of our free department, had the three gallant companies out one afternoon of last week in uniform and with equipments, and had a group photograph taken by Mr. N. G. White.

On Tuesday evening of last week, at the residence of Mr. T. H. Shelly, on Green street, the social club met and had a most delightful evening of enjoyment. Our young people are all at ease at these meetings, as it is a kind of "go-as-you-please" affair, and they generally pass the time to suit themselves. Whist, euchre, music, recitations, etc., are always in order, and as we have the best and prettiest young ladies and the most gallant young men to be found anywhere, it is unnecessary to say that benefit is thus derived by being thrown together. The evening began bright and clear, but shortly after the young people had gathered the vivid flashing of lightning and the deep roaring thunder announced an approachings storm, which soon came in full "torce, frightening to some extent our timid young ladies, and the young men, ever ready to show their bravery and gallantry, were endeavoring to dispel their fears, and one was heard to say: "Don't be scared; it's only a storm." The rain descended in torrents and the wind howled until a late hour, when it somewhat abated, and, securing carriages, all departed for their homes, but the furry of the storm came the wind howled until a late hour, when it somewhat abated, and, securing carriages, all departed for their homes, but the fury of the storm came upon them once more, and more than one were thoroughly soaked in the drenching rain, but no disastrous results have yet been reported. Although the night was gloomy, the evening was enjoyed to its fullest; and thanks are given to Mr. T. H. Shelly and Miss Addle Comer for courtesics extended. Those present were:

Madison society shone forth in all its splendor at the reception tendered by Mrs. A. M. Speer to her lovely daughter, Miss Dena Sanders and charming guests, Misses Mamie Hemphill, of Atlanta, and Fannie Drake. of Union Point. On the occasion mentioned, Friday evening, March 16th, the handsome parlors of this home were filled to theie utmost capacity with the elite of the city, all in high spirits and being entertained in a royal manner by the accomplished hostess and lovely daughter. At 110 clock the guests were ushered into the dining halls, where a table groaning 'neath the choicest viands and rarest fruits met the eyes of admiring belies and beaux. At twelve the merry crowd wended their way to their respective homes, each and every one loud in their praises of those by whom they were royally entertained. An important feature of this entertainment we failed to mention in the proper place, which was the exquisite toilets of the ladies.

It is seldom that Madison's young people spend a more pleasant evening than the one spent at the home of two of our favorites, Misses Mittle and Pauline Pou, and the "brica-brac party" was highly enjoyed.

Mrs. Mary Hewins Fiske, the "Giddy Gusher" of the Mirror, and one of the brightest of women, has finished her play, which was read at her pretty home, "The Woodbine," Highbridge, a few days ago, to a small party of intimate friends. That the play is clever goes without saying, but it is also a great play, and one that is sure to attract a good deal of attention. Mrs. Fiske, who is known to be one of the best conversationalists in gotham, read the play herself—aimost playing the role of each character—with such consummate skill as to make the reading fully us interesting as a performance.

when John Russell, now with "Natural Gas," was agent for Minnie Palmer, he saw in a New Orleans bird shop a number of parrots, and conceived the idea of naving these birds taught to say, "Go see Minnie Palmer," intending to hang them up in public pinces. The bird man was most sanguine of success. Rossell was to return in a week and get the birds. He did return, but the bird man didn't seem extremely happy, his efforts having been only partially successful. Takins John into has hack room, he introduced an eld warrier of a ered and tailliess. THE WONDERFUL CARLSBAD SPRINGS.

An Eminent Physician Reads a Paper of Great Interest Before the International Medical Congress.

At the ninth International Medical congress, Dr. A. L. A. T. boldt, of the University of Pennsylvania, read a paper stating that out of tairty cares treated with Carlsbad Water and the Powdered Carlsbad Sprudel Salt for chronic constitution, hypochondria, disease of the liver and kidneys, jaundice, adipease of the liver and kidneys, jaundice, adipease, disease of the liver and kidneys, jaundice, adipease, of the stomach or spleen, children with manamus, gout, rheumatism of the joints, gravel, etc., twenty-six were entirely cared, three inteh improved, and one not treated long enough. Average time of treatment, four weeks, in all of these cases no particular diet was presenthed. The doctor claims, in conclusion of his paper, that the Carlstad Mineral Water, as exported by the city of Carlstad, being the natural product, is much to be preferred where the quantity of water is no objection, particularly in diseases of the stomach. Whenever ine quantity of water cannot be taken (as when away from home) the Powder Carlsbad Sprudel Salt (se be relied upon, independently of any adjuncts of treatment, such as diet and exercise, whether taken hot or cold, claiming even an advantage when taken, cold, as it acts more decidedly pargative, and that he has given cold the preference, only using the water hot when no purgative action is desired. The dose of the water employed was two tumblerfuls before breakfast and one or two during the day. The dose of the water employed was two tumblerfuls before breakfast and one or two during the day. The dose of the Powder Spudel Salt should be used in conjunction with the water. Joseph Gill Shot Dead Near Savannah.

The Bloody Deed of Two Colored Butch ers of Savannah-The Evidence on Trial.

BAYANNAH, Ga., March 24.-[Special.]-Joseph Gill, a white farmer living near Pooler, negro. The circumstances were unusual, and the escape of the murderer was remarkable. The story of the killing is well told in the evidence of the witnesses before the coroner's inquest this morning.

Word was sent to the city late last night.

Early this morning Captain W. D. Dixon, the coroner, drove out to Mr. Gills home, which is nearly ten miles from the city, and he held the inquest there. He took possession of a butcher knife, an old hatchet and an old steel which butchers use for sharpening their knives.

These were found in a bag near the beef.
All of the bags were covered with brush. On the butcher knife handle are the letters "N. C." and "A." On the musket are the letters "D. B. R.," apparently burned with a small stamp. It is supposed that the murderer has come to this city. He did not know that he killed any one. The police are keeping a sharp lookout today
C. M. Gill, a brother of the murdered man, was the first witness sworn. He said: "Yesterday afternoon I sent my boy out to look for some cattle I had sold, and soon after he came back and told me that he had found signs indicating that a beef had been killed. I put a saddle on my horse and rode to the place, and near by found the quarters of a beef in sacks. In one bag I found a hatchet, a steel and a butcher knife. I put John Graham near, until I could go off and get which butchers use for sharpening their knives. John Graham near, until I could go off and get some friends. About dark I returned to the spot with three others. Graham stated that some friends. About dark I returned to the spot with three others. Graham stated that while he was watching, a negro game up with a pistol in hand, and after looking at the beef went off. My brother, Thomas Gill, with Joe Ferrell and myself, took a stand thirty yards away. Jasper and Joe Gill and Jack Rodgers took another to watch and see who would come; for, the beef. I told them that if any one came they should not fire unless the thief would come; for the beef. I told them that if any one came they should not fire unless the their picked up the beef and started off. About 8:30 o'clock my brother Tom said: "Here they come." I told him not to fire too soon.
I cannot say whether there were two or three parties who approached the beef. It was moonlight, but I could not make out whether they were white or colored. Just then one of the opposite watch called out;

"Drop that sack."
I heard a gun click, then there was a flash of a gun and a report. We all ran at the thieves, shooting as we went. They ran off, When I got to Joe he was in my brother Jasper's arms. I remained with them and helped carry Joe to a house a quarter of a mile away.
He lived only a few minutes, and never spoke. The spot where this happened was in the woods between the six and seven mile the woods between the six and seven mile post, on the Central railroad. Joe was twenty-cight years old, was married, but leaves no

Jasper Gill corroborated the above statement. He said that it was the dead Jaspet Gill corroborated the above statement. He said that it was the dead man who called out to the thief to drop the sack.

Rafe Bird, colored, testified that he heard the shooting and went out of his house, which was near, to see what the firing was about. When he got to the railroad he saw the Messrs. Gill and learned of the murder. Bird proceeded to give testimony which may lead to the arrest of the murder and his companions. Bird said:

"Yesterday afternoon I was walking up the road track when I met two colored men nding on the road. One of them had a taket. I knew the face of both, but not the names of either. Last winter I worked in Bavannah with them. We were all employed as drivers by Mr. McCormack, the drayman. I asked them where they had been, and they answered that they had come from Whitesville, where they said they staid the night before. They answered that they were on their way back to Savannah. They walked along with me for some distance, following close behind, and whispering. I could not tell what they were talking about, but thought that they acted suspiciously, and kept an eve on they were talking about, but thought that they acted suspiciously, and kept an eye on them myself. Eoth are butchers. Before parting from me they asked for some tobacco and a match. Both men were tall and dark. I can identify them if I ever see them again. I think both are butchers by trade, and believe I could have put my hand on them if I got to Savannah this morning. We found a musket by the beef after the shooting, and I believe it is the one I saw the men have."

The jury brought in the following verdict: We find that Joseph Gill came to his death from a gunshot wound in the hands of some party or parties unknown to the jury, and we consider it a murder.

The Hamilton, a colored man, was killed this afternoon by the falling in of the old jail wall. He was digging about the foundation when they gave way, and the heavy masonry fell upon him, crushing him and burying him. His back was broken. He was dug out, but his death had already occurred. No efforts to resucitate him availed anything. It was sometime before the earth could be removed from him. KILLED BY A FALLING WALL.

AID FOR THE CHURCHES.

The Destruction of the Buildings in Calhoun by the Cyclone.

Calhoun, Ga., March 23, 1888.—Editors Constitution: Will you allow us space in your columns to appeal to the people at large in behalf of our churches. Your readers already know of the terrible storm which swept over our town on the night of the 21st instant, and left it in ruins. We do not ask aid for individuals; we can take care of them and see that there is no suffering; but our churches are in rains and our people are not able to repair their own losses, which is a heavy tax, and then subscribe liberally toward public buildings. The Baptist and Methodist, white, and the Methodist, colored, are completely wrecked, and we need assistance to rebuild them. Contributions of any amount will be duly acknowledged and credited to the fund for which it is sent by.

An Accident Averted.

An Accident Averted.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]
While the colored fire company were exhibiting their agility yesterday an accident happened to the team that was diverted from fatality only by a miracle. The hook and ladder part of the organization were making a test run against time when the rear guide lost control of the machine, which careened to the right and struck the brick base of the bell tower with a tremendous force. The laddermen were scattered about the ground in pitiable confusion and truck, buckets and other equipments were thrown into an undistinguished mass. The rear ladderman would have been ground to powder against the bell tower but for his beautiful leap of about fifteen feet and the death-like grip with which he clung to the latticework of the band stand above the wreck.

Death of Major R. R. Terrell.

Baineringe, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—
Major Robert R. Terrell, a prominent citizen of this town and county, who was stricken with apoplexy, of which The Constitution was duly informed, is dead. He was the father-in-law of Hal Morrison, the Atlanta artist, whose wife reached the dying man's bedside just before his death. Major Terrell was 63 years old, had held many positions of trust and honor, and was a member of the state legislature of 1850.

THE CASE AGAINST PARKER.

Sensational Murder Trial in Newton

County.

County.

County.

Covincton, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—
The evidence has been closed in the case of the state vs. Noah Parker, charged with murder, and the argument of counsel commenced. The evidence for the state, in brief, made out the following case against the defendant: For sometime previous to the homocide, Parker had sustained improper relations to a young woman living in his neighborhood. William Duke (the person killed by Parker) had tried to break up the affair, (he being Parker's brother-in-law) and he and Parker had a difficulty about the matter. About a month or two before the killing Parker made threats to the effect that he intended to kill Duke, if he ever got him where he wanted him.

On the night of the killing Dukes and one Thompson had started out serenading, and trees the state of the state of them to

On the night of the killing Dukes and one Thompson had started out serenading, and were joined by Parker, who induced them to go to hishouse for the purpose of partaking of a whisky stew which he said he had prepared. Immediately after reaching Parker's house Parker and Duke got into a quarrel about the above mentioned young woman, who was then in Parker's house. Thompson succeeded in getting them quieted, and shortly afterward Parker left the house and did not again return until after he had killed Duke. Shortly after Parker left his house Duke went from that house to the house of Parker's mother, which was about thirty yards distant. Not long thereafter the report of a gun was heard, and in "about ten minutes Parker returned to his house and stated that "he had killed Duke as dead as hell, and that he had taken a light and looked stated that "he had killed Duke as dead as hell, and that he had taken a light and looked at him and knew that he was dead."

That night, after the killing, and on the next day Parker made statements to several parties to the effect that he killed Duke just after he came out of Mrs. Parker's house; that he was standing about fifteen feet from Duke when he shot him; that Duke did not fall as soon as he was stot and he/Parker's no need the when he shot him; that Duke did not fall as soon as he was shot, and he (Parker) snapped the other barrel of his gun at him, and after he had fallen beat him over the head with his gun. Near Duke's head there were indentations in the ground, apparently made by the buttof a cun result of a cun result o att of a gun. Duke's knife was found on the ground about Duke's knife was found on the ground about six inches from his right hand, and on the night of the killing there was a little blood on the blade of the knife. The next morning both the blade and handle of the knife were bloody, and there was blood on the right hand pecket of Duke's pants and the pocket was turned inside out. It was shown by one witness that Parker gave as his reason for killing Duke that he had been cursing his (Parker's) mother, and by another that he said that he killed Duke because Duke west streatening to kill all of his (Parker's) family. The evidence for the defendant tended to make out a case of self defense and defense of his mother, but the testimony of his most important witnesses was shaken by proof of previous contradictory statements, and a failure to swear to the same things before the coroner's jury that they swore to on the trial here. Of course it is impossible to tell what will be the verdict of the jury, but the state has made out a strong case against the defendant, and it is not at all probable that the verdict will be for a less offense than manslaughter, and under the evidence, a verdict for murder would be justified.

THE NEW SEMINARY BUILDING.

A Model School Building Completed in the Gainesville, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—One of the pet institutions of Gainesville is the Georgia Female seminary and it is with pride and pleasure that our people note its continued prosperity. The board of trustees have just about completed one of the handsomest and most convenient school buildings in the state. On the first floor is the large chapel, which is being beautifully finished, the wainscotting and other wood work being of Georgia pine oiled and varnished. On the sides and to the rear of the stage are several music rooms with doors opening upon the stage, thus making it possible to have several pianos upon stage at a moment's notice. On the second floor are school rooms and the president's office, the third floor will be used as an Mountain City. pianos upon stage at a moment's notice. On the second floor are school rooms and the president's office, the third floor will be used as an art department, museum and exercise hall for the pupils. A room 30x60 will be fitted up as a hall for physical training. Taken altogether the building is one of which any institution should be proud. The number of pupils from a distance is larger than ever before while the growing music department/constantly demands the purchase of new instruments. Dr. J. G. Armstrong, of Atlanta, delighted the young ladies on Friday afternoon with a lecture on voice culture, the subject being suggested to him, as he said, by a beautiful solo sung by Miss Delia Arnold, of Senoia, Ga.

THE DEMOSTHENEANS.

The Result of the Championship Debate at Athens. ATHENS, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—A large number of the alumni and members of large number of the alumni and members of the Demosthenean society assembled in the hall this morning, for the purpose of witnessing the contest for the champion debate. It has been the custom in this society for many years to elect their debaters by a vote of the members, but this year it was decided that they should be appointed on merit.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. C. B. Warren, of Savannah. The question, resolved "that the right of suffrage be extended to women," was then read, and the debate commenced. About twelve young men entered the contest, and displayed great skill in handling this subject. Their arguments were strong and well selected. After the debate, the judges, Messrs. Sylvanus Morris, Rev. Mr. Anderson and Dr. Lane, decided that Messrs. W. V. Pope, of Atlanta, B. S. Miller, of Buena Vista, and R. H. Estes, of Gainesville, had made the best speeches, and they were accordingly awarded the places as champion debaters from the society. The students are taking great interest in their literary societies this year, and are trying to raise them up to their former standings.

Dr. Armstrong in Gainesville.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—The elite of our beautiful queen city was out last night to listen to Dr. J. G. Armstrong, of Atlanta, in one of his splendid lectures. The chapel of the Gainesville college was nearly filled, and for an hour and a half we were entertained, thrilled, wrapped in profound absorption while the learned and eloquent divine discussed Julius Cæsar. He gave us first Julius Cæsar in his true character—a democrat and the greatest hero of the Roman race; then he discussed the character of Cæsar, as Shakspeare has given it in the drama—an imperfect character as Dr. A. thinks, not doing the great consol justice. We could only regret that the whole city was not out to hear the address. In the morning he addressed the pupils of the Gainesville college and in the evening the young ladies of the Georgia Baptist seminary. The latter I heard, and it was fine. CUMMING, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—Absence from home prevented me from reporting the result of the storm which swept over this place Tuesday night. It was quite severe and lasted an hour or more. A number of houses were blown down. Among others was the colored M. E. church, recently erected, the carriage house and crib of Captain Mullino were blown down, demolishing a new hack and buggy and doing other damage on his place. A number of cabins and outhouses in and around the town were also blown away: also many fences, etc. The people were greatly frightened.

Wouldn't Drop the Corn Right.

CAMILLA, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—Tom Sellers, living in this county, undertook to reprove a negro tor not dropping corn properly on Monday. The negro gave him a cursing. Sellers attempted to thrash him, when the negro stuck his knife isto his shoulder, breaking off the blade, and took to his heels. Sellers came to town and the physician took out half an inch of the blade, leaving the point sticking in the bone that could not be gotten out. The wound is painful, but not dangerous.

Had His Arm Dislocated Macox, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—Professor A. I. Branham, formerly of this city, and ex-correspondent of The Construction, but now occupying the important position of superintendent of the public schools in Brunswick, passed through here today, accompanied by his two little girls, on their way home from Chattanooga. While in Dalton, on their return trip, he had a narrow escape from what came near being a serious accident. The passenger train collided with a freight, wounding several passengers, among which was Mr. Branham, who was so unfortunate as to have his arm dislocated. He suffered intense pain. The arm was skillfully attended to, but the terrible strain caused a great deal of agony. At this hour he is a great deal better.

Gone to Texas to Reside. Macon, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—This morning Mrs. Thomas Willingham, Jr., and her children, left for Dallas, Texas, to join Mr. Willingham, her husband. Mr. Willingham went some time ago to view the prospects, and was so well pleased and delighted that he decided to move his family to that place, making it their home. He has glowing pros-

Darkness did come after long and weary waiting, her hours of duty had ended and she waiting the large when the station was waiting, her hours of duty had ended and she was preparing to leave when the station was called and she was told in clicking whispers that on account of an extra that was wildcating she would have to remain until

With the reverse of a pleasant expression upon her face and an almost defiant tossing back of her auburn curls she sat down again The workmen about the station went home and left her alone: the frogs croaked mournfully from a neighboring slough and the wires made weired music as the brisk night wind played upon them. But the experience was not new to her; there was nothing to fear and her father would come for her when the night was done.

her father would come for her when the light was done.

Eight, nine, ten passed, and the night was becoming painful. Something must be done. She failed to remember being so much oppressed by the lack of society and wondered how Robinson Crusoe could have existed before his man Friday. Then she thought of a female friend who was operator at the next westward station, and, nearly dying for some one to talk to summoned "Sterling." one to talk to, summoned "Sterling."

There was no reply. Try as she would directly she could get none, but utilizing a circuit she was answered, and asked:

"Prairie round Buffalo Heart Grove a sea of flame, line down, bridges over culverts probably burned. Stop all trains at X," she managed to flash back over the wire.

Then she dashed out where all should have been darkness but was not. For miles earth and sky were illuminated, the roaring of the flames could be distinctly heard, their furious leaping distinctly traced, their speed swifter than the greyhound and their force resistless as a cyclone. Nothing to her now was duty, nothing that it wanted two hours of midnight, nothing that many lives might hang upon her remaining at her post. One life she knew was in danger, and that was to her more than all others in the world.

but did not enter the house—dared not for fear of the thwarting of her purpose. As she passed the window she saw her oid father nodding in his chair, and a satisfied smile parted on her lips. For all the hidden wealth of mountain and canyon she would not have him waken.

Well she knew the swiftest and most untiring horse in the stable. That it was one she had never ridden, a young, fiery, valuable blueblooded stallion, she never gave a thought. Speed and courage were the things now to be desired, and all other considerations, even her own safety, were dwarfed into nothingness by them.

own safety, were dwarfed into nothingness by them.
With soothing voice and gentle hands the girl led the horse out, bridled, saddled, and mounted. Astonished by her daring he quietly submitted. The charm of womanhood had easily accomplished what had ever been a difficult task for men. Then, startled by the unusual burden and flapping of skirts about his flank, he reared, plunged, pawed the air, kicking vigorously, and made a desperate effort to unseat the rider. It was unsuccessful. The hands that held the reigns, little as they were, had a grip of iron, and the whip left a welt upon the glossy skin. Madly shaking his head, dashing out with his heels, with the breath whistling through the thin nostruls, he made a second attempt; shivered as he received a still more stinging blow, then dashed furiously down the stinging blow, then dashed furiously down the

The clatter of hoofs disturbed the dreams of the old farmer. He sprang to the window, but only to catch an indistinct vision of something, glanced at the clock, murmured contentedly of having an hour before going for Nellie, and settled himself for another nap.

Little idea had he that his only child and costly steed were indulging in the wildest of races under a sky lighted as by the flames of hell and surrounded by its fires.

The switchman saw the girl as she flew past, saw the swift galloping horse, the rider with her long hair streaming in the wind, the horse as if breathing smoke, saw without recognition, and superstiously imagined that the ghost of some red child of the wilderness, whose bones had been disturbed in building the iron track of the pale face, was out for a midnight revel.

For a considerable distance the road was over an undulating prairie, and both horse and rider enjoyed the race; then they were forced upon the ties, and the heavily shod hoofs clattered along the bridges; then they left it and safety plunged upon a narrow thread of beaten earth, with fire swiftly rushing toward it from either side.

The horse, brave and blooded as he was, hesitated, as well he might; but the hand of the rider was firm and the whip merciless. A brief hour had transformed the gentle girl into a woman maddened by love and superior to dannent. John King was in danger of being consumed. She must save him or And very soon the horse became mad as well. With long and seemingly tireless strides he stretched himself. His black skin was flecked with foam, his sides were heaving as a bellows, like escaping steam his breath was blowing, his eyes were red with exertion, and his frame trembled with excitement.

On, on they pressed, on thus far in little danger, for the fire was yet at a distance. But with every moment it became nearer, closed upon them and blazing sparks fell thickly as rain.

On, on, and the flames leaped upward and at times closed over their heads; they were rushing as through a tunnel of hissing, roaring fire; it was crowding in proceedings.

ing as through a tunnel of hissing, roaring fire; it was crowding in upon them, was beneath their feet, was playing in fantic shapes around and above.

Mad as the girl was with desire to reach her lover the horrors of the situation were forced upon her brain. She bowed her head to the fiery storm, shielded her face, and often extinguished her burning dress; spoke encourag-ingly to the horse, patted his quivering neck, used the deep cutting lash, cutting a hundred times more cruelly, for his sides were cracking with the heat, and blood was oozing from the blistered wounds.

Never yet steed that could bear such a fearful strain, never flesh that could resist a prairie fire with hundreds of acres of dry, tall grass and reeds for fuel and fanned by a gale.

On! The girl shielded her eyes with her trembling hands, and above the smoke saw the waving of trees. As yet the furious fire had not reached, at least had not penetrated, them. There was life, safety and more than all, love. Could she reach them? A scanty half mile had yet to be traveled. Instinct, often as clear to discover as mind, told the horse of as clear to discover as mind, told the horse of the situation as clearly as her eyes. She called upon him, and he answered; she bewed to the saddle, she shut her eyes, and then!

The flames swirled round, and they were wrapped in a winding sheet of them the red, huge forked tongues touch them with blistering kisses, the wind roared through the gigantic furnace, the earth was hot beneath the air burning above; deer, wolf, every creeping thing were outfooted in the race, were beaten down by a swift death, and how could they ossibly escape.
On! Between them and the sheltering trees. but a few rods remained; but a few feet. Could they be overcome? Voice and lash urged the noble horse on. He struggled to obey, but his best efforts were becoming feebler, his heart was beating slow, the iron muscled limbs were fast becoming the state of the state

But the impulsed had been sufficient to carry him beyond the blazing death and the bushesclosed behind and the trees rose above and rosed behind and the trees rose above and protected them from the scorching heat.

"God be thanked," exclaimed the suffering girl as she knelt beside the gallant horse.

"God be thanked," and she flung her arms around his neck and shed bitter tears as she saw how scared and burned he was, regardless

With difficulty she urged him to his feet and led him forward. But he knew as well as she of their safety, of the necessity of moving, and lamblike followed deep into the wood where the cabin stood.
"John, dear John," rang out the voice of the girl.

"John, dear John," rang out the voice of the girl.
"Nellie! Great God is that you?" was answered and questioned, and a moment later she was locked in his protecting arms.

In a few words she told all, and begged him to do all possible for the horse.
"Now and ever," he answered. "One moment." He climbed to the top of a tall tree, looked around, descended and said cheerfully: "The wind has changed and the fire is rushing away from the timber; we are safe here. But why in the name of heaven did you attempt such a dangerous chance, Nellie"

Eluding the Conductor. A crowd that had gathered about the McAfee house Tuesday afternoon, were greatly amused by watching the movements of a tramp. He was concealed in a box car that was locked and sealed and the only opening was a small square window at the end of the car, which looked to be about large enough for his head to get through. Hearing the laughter on the outside he got an idea that the conductor was on his track, and decided to escape. Greatwas the astonishment and loud were the shouts of the crowd when they saw him gradually appearing through the window and descending to the ground, his head in the lead. When he had gained his equilibrium he coolly remarked, "You're the biggest set of fools I ever saw!" When he was informed that he was safe and the conductor was not after him A crowd that had gathered about the McAfee ever saw!" When he was informed that he was safe and the conductor was not after his at all, he went to work to get back into his hiding place. He climbed up a brakeman's ladder on an opposite car and swung his feet into the little window first, gradually following with his body in the same manner in which he came out, with his position reversed. When the train moved off he moved with it. When the train moved off he moved with it.

We are gratified to see that Judge Wellburn is determined, as far as possible, to put a stop to the illicit dealing in liquor in our county. He had seven cases of this kind before him during our courf, and put the penalty of the law upon every one of them. That is right. There is no use having a prohibition law unless it is made effective by being enforced. We hope all our judges will follow the good example set them by Judge Wellburn in this matter.

CARLISLES CHANCES

For the Succession to Chief Justice Waite.

CRISP PROMINENT FOR SPEAKERSHIP Collector Crenshaw Goes off Half-Cocked

Again-The Dry Grins Caused by the Trath When it Came.

WASHINGTON, March 24 .- [Special.]-There has, today, been even more discussion in regard to the late Chief Justice Waite's successor than on yesterday. In the house it was the general topic of conversation among the democratic members, and the prevailing sentiment is that Speaker Carlisle should and will be appointed. A number of members who talked of the matter today said that if Mr. Carlisle was appointed to the bench there would be many gentlemen who would aspire to the speakership. Sunset Cox, of New York, has a few personal friends who favor him as Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, who makes excellent presiding officer, has many friends, but the strongest sentiments expressed, and by the majority of the democratic members, favor the election of Judge Crisp, of Georgia, to the speaker's char. It is safe to predict that if Mr. Carlisle is made chief justice, Judge Crisp will be the next speaker.

Notwithstanding the fact that the demo-cratic members of the house are in favor of Mr. Carlisle's appointment, many other prom-inent men are favorably considered, among them being Minister Phelps, Secretaries Bayard, Endicott and Vilas, Postmaster-General Dickinson, Senator Gray, of Delaware; ex-Sonator McDonald, of Indiana, and Mr. Bissell, President Cleveland's former law partner, besides others mentioned in last night's dispatch. When Justice Waite's sucdispatch. When Justice Waite's successor has been appointed, two places will have been filled with democrats. Three of the remaining justices have already passed the retiring age. With this it is practically certain that the next president will determine the political character of the court and as methan. of the court, and as matters appears at present, it seems that the votes of the country will decide to make it democratic.

CRENSHAW WAS PREMATURE. I learn today that on Wednesday, as soon as Senator Rankin offered his resolution in the democratic executive committee of Georgia, Indorsing Mr. Cleveland's message, Collector Crenshaw wired Commissoner of Internal Revenue Miller that they had passed upon its reception. Mr. Miller, with the message in hand, rushed over to the white house to inform President Cleveland that the representatives of the state of Georgia, in committee assembled, had passed resolutions indorsing his policy, and showing that THE CONSTITUTION, Candler and Cloments were misrepresenting the people of that grand old state in stating that they did not agree with the president's message, and were in favor of repealing the internal revenue laws. Both were highly pleased, and celebrated the occasion in a degree commensurate with their high official positions. However, when THE CONSTITU-TION came yesterday and showed that the res-olution did not pass, but was thrown aside without a vote, Mr. Miller, and others who owe their official positions the internal revenue system, felt as though they had been gored thy a bull, and jubilations quickly ceased. Today Mr. Miller is vigor-ous in his remarks about Mr. Crenshaw for sending him a telegram conveying false infor

The chances are that Culberson's bill, which was debated to-day, to define and regulate the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, which withdraws all original jurisdiction now vested in the circuit courts of the United States and vests the same in the district courts, except the power to issue writs of error, mandanus, prohibition, scire facias, habeas corpus and other remedial writs, will pass when called up under the five-minute rule. The bill provides that the circuit courts shall consist of a justice of the supreme court, assigned to the circuit and of the circuit judges, and that in the absence of the justice of the supreme court the senior circuit judge shall preside; that in the absence of a quorum the court may be adjourned from day to day, or without day; but the number necessary to make a supreme court or the requisite number of circuit judges are unable to attend may be supplied for the time by a district judge of the same court to be designated. The district judge, however, who may be designated, shall not sit in a case on appeal in the trial of which he presided in the district court. Provision is also made for the appointment of nine additional circuit judges, one for each circuit. Section 3 provides for a review of the final judgments of the district courts by the circuit courts in all cases where a writ of error may be sued out, and in other cases by appeal, and in causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, as now provided by law. There is some objection urged to this bill upon the grounds that it increases the number of Uni-ted States judges, and extends the power of the federal courts too much. The bill also provides that there shall be appointed for each

"God be thanked," exclaimed the suffering girl as she knelt beside the gallant horse. "God be thanked," and she flung her arms around his neck and shed bitter tears as she saw how scared and burned he was, regardless of her own sufferings.

With difficulty she urged him to his feet and led him forward. But he knew as well as she of their safety, of the necessity of moving, and lamblike followed deep into the wood where the cabin stood.

"Nellie! Great God is that you?" was answered and questioned, and a moment later she was locked in his protecting arms.

In a few words she told all, and begged him to do all possible for the horse.

"Now and ever," he answered. "One moment." He climbed to the top of a tall tree, looked around, descended and said cheerfully: "The wind has changed and the fire is rushing away from the timber; we are safe here. But why in the name of heaven did you attempt such a dangerous chance, Nellie"."

A crowd that had gathered about the McAfee house Taesday afternoon, were greatly amused by watching the movements of a tramp. He was conceased in a box car that was locked and sealed and the only opening was a small square window at the end of the car, which looked to be about large enough for his head to get through. Hearing the laughter on the outside he got an idea that the conductor was on his track, and decided to estape. Great was the astonishment and loud were the shouts of the crowd when they saw him gradually appearing through the window and descending to the ground, his head in the lead. When he had gained his equilibrium he coolly remarked, "You're the biggest set of fools I ever saw!" When he was informed that he was safe and the conductor was not after him at all, he went to work to get back into his hiding place. He climbed up a brakeman's ladder on an opposite car and swung his feet into the little window first, gradually following with his body in the same manner in which he cane out, with his position reversed. When the train moved off he moved with it. He deserved not to be left.

We are gratified to see that Judge Wellburn is determined, as far as possible, to put a stop to the illicit dealing in liquor in our county. He had seven cases of this kind before him during our court, and put the penalty of the law upon every one of them. That is right. There is no use having a prohibition law unless it is made effective by being enforced. We hope all our judges will follow the good example set them by Judge Wellburn in this matter.

CARLISLES CHANCES

For the Succession to Chief Justice Waite.

CRISP PROMINENT FOR SPEAKERSHIP Collector Crenshaw Goes off Half-Cocked Again-The Dry Grins Caused by the Truth When it Came.

WASHINGTON, March 24 .- [Special.]-There has, today, been even more discussion in regard to the late Chief Justice Waite's successor than on yesterday. In the house it was the general topic of conversation among the democratic members, and the prevailing sentiment is that Speaker Carlisle should and will be appointed. A number of members who talked of the matter today said that if Mr. Carlisle was appointed to the bench there would be many gentlemen who would aspire to the speakership. Sunset Cox, of New York, has a few personal friends who favor him as Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, who makes speaker. I factor, who makes an excellent presiding officer, has many friends, but the strongest sentiments expressed, and by the majority of the democratic members, favor the election of Judge Crisp, of Georgia, to the speaker's char. It is safe to predict that if Mr. Carlisle is made chief justice, Judge Crisp will be the next speaker.

Notwithstanding the fact that the demo-cratic members of the house are in favor of Mr. Carlisle's appointment, many other prominent men are favorably considered, among them being Minister Phelps, Secretaries Bayard; Endicott and Vilas, Postmaster-General Dickinson, Senator Gray, of Delaware; ex-Senator McDonald, of Indiana, and Mr. Bissell, President Cleveland's former law partner, besides others mentioned in last night's patch. When Justice Waite's suc-sor has been appointed, two places ll have been filled with mocrats. Three of the remaining justices have already passed the retiring age. With this it is practically certain that the next president will determine the political character of the court, and as matters appears at present, it seems that the votes of the country will decide to make it democratic.

CRENSHAW WAS PREMATURE. I learn today that on Wednesday, as soon as Senator Rankin offered his resolution in the democratic executive committee of Georgia, indorsing Mr. Cleveland's message, Collector Crenshaw wired Commissoner of Internal Revenue Miller that they had passed upon its reception. Mr. Miller, with the message in hand, rushed over to the white house to inform President Cleveland that the representatives of the state of Georgia, in committee assem bled, had passed resolutions indorsing his policy, and showing that THE CONSTITUTION, the Chronicle, Senator Brown and Messers, Candler and Cloments were misropresenting the people of that grand old state in stating that they did not agree with the president's masage, and were in favor of repealing the internal revenue laws. Both were highly pleased, and celebrated the occasion in a degree commensurate with their high official ons. However, when THE CONSTITU-TION came yesterday and showed that the resolution did not pass, but was thrown aside without a vote, Mr. Miller, and others who owe their official positions to the internal revenue system, felt as though they had been gored thy a bull, and jubilations quickly ceased. Today Mr. Miller is vigorous in his remarks about Mr. Crenshaw for sending him a telegram conveying false infor-

Startling Statements of a Witness at the Lard Investigation.

Washington, March 24.—The house committee on agriculture resumed the hearing on the lard question. William G. Bartle, of St. Louis, testified that he had been in the pork packing business for forty years, and kad also been engaged in shipping cattle to the east. He had recently been in Kanasa City, and examined the stock yards and packing houses there. At Jacob Dale & Son's he found them slaughtering a great many diseased logs, most of them suffering from what is known as cholera. A member of the firm told him that but little white grease was made now, and also that his foremen had recently bought 22,000 smothered hogs, which were put into tanks.

on cross examination, witness stated that when he was in business he necessarily packed cholora hogs because they were mixed in with other hogs. It was very difficult for a man in purchasing 2,000 or 3,000 hogs to detect cholera hogs. The stock yards were filled with cholera hogs today. He had cut hogs into ham, etc., knowing them to be diseased, just as every other packer did.

One of the evils of the time was the shipping of diseased hogs! and pregnant sows to market by Mr. Armour. He had tried to stop this and had been instrumental in framing a bill for introduction into the Missouri legislature imposing a penalty upon any farmer bill for introduction into the Missouri legislature imposing a penalty upon any farmer shipping that character of swine.

Everything that affected a hog was called cholera. The meat of the cholera hogs was not, in his judgment poisonous. If the meat of cattle suffering from Texas fever was polsonous, half the people in St. Louis would have been dead long ago.

In response to a question by the chairman, witness stated that out of a car load of sixty animals, the number of bears, stags and pregnant sows would zometimes be none but at times would run from five to twenty. The chairman said that while that might be true of the St. Louis market it was not true of northeastern Missouri—not one farmer out of a hundred in that section would spoil a nice lot of hogs by putting a boar and stag among them.

The House Discusses the Bill Regulating Their Jurisdiction.

Washington, March 24.—In the house,*Mr.
Steele, of Indiana, from the committee on military affairs, reported a bill providing for the promotion of army officers after twenty years continuous service in one grade. Referred to the committee of the whole.

The fleor was then accorded to the committee on judiciary and the house went into committee of the whole (Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, in the chair) on the bill to define and regulate the jurisdiction of United States courts.

Mr. Stone, of Missouri, in an exhaustive speech urged the necessity of separating the machinery of state courts entirely from that of official courts.

Mr. Weaver, of Iowa, while giving his adherence to most of the features of the bill, opposed the provision for the appointment of nine additional circuit judges. He was in favor of legislation which instead of providing for more judges would tend to curtail the jurisdiction of federal courts and turn the business of the country into local tribunals.
Argunfent was continued by Messrs. Anderson, of Iowa; Wilson, of Minnessota; Holman, Culberson and others.

Pending debate the committee rose and the house adjourned.

THE TELANTAGRAPH.

A New Invention Which Beats the Telephone.

A New Invention Which Beats the Telephone.

Chicago, Ill., March 20.—Prof. Elisha Gray, of Highland park, has just completed an invention scarcely less wonderful and valuable than the telephone. "On next Saturday," said the professor, "I shall give an exhibition of my new telantagraph to some gentlemen from the cast. I have tested it to my own satisfaction over and over again. By my invention you can sit down at your office in Chicago, take a pencil in your hand, write a message to me, and as your pencil moves a pencil here in my laboratory moves simultaneously and forms the same letters and words in the same way. What you write in Chicago is instantly reproduced here in fac-simile. You may write in any language; write in short hand if you like; use a code or cipher: no matter, a fac-simile is produced here. If you wish to draw a picture it is the same; the picture is reproduced here. The artist of your paper can, by this device, telegraph his pictures of a railway wreck or other occurrence just as a reporter telegraphs his description in words. The two pencils move synchronously and there is no reason why a circuit of 500 miles can not be worked as easily as one of ten miles. The telantagraph will supplant the telephone for many purposes, for it will have marked advantages over it. It will be noiseless, less affected by induction and no misunderstanding can result.

"When one person wishes to communicate with an other by the telantagraph he pushes a button, which rings an annunciator in the exchange, or in the office of the person with whom he wishes to converse. Then the first party takes his writing pencil from its holder, and this may be pen or pencil, and writes his message upon a roll of paper. As he writes so writes the pencil at the other end of the wire. But these wires regulate the currents which control the pencil path that it can be used commercially. It will not cost more than $15 or $25, and it works much more perfectly than the telephone."

The Summerville high school building was totally destroyed by fire here Thursday at 10 o'clock. The fire originated from a defective flue. One piano was destroyed, while two others and nearly all the furniture was saved. A very strong wind was blowing at the time, and for about an hour the whole town was threatened. Six buildings on Main street, three hundred yards away, caught on fire about the same time from flying embers. Miss Kate Powell, while crossing the street two hundred yards from the burning building, ner clothing ignited and was only saved from a horrible death by the presence of mind off two or three men present, who jorked her clothing from her. The heroic efforts of the entire population by the use of buckets saved the town. School resumed this morning in another building.

When the woman told her story at the police station a roundsman was sent with her to ver-ify it. To him she related her recent history in a listless, mechanical way, as though it was a worn-out theme that long since had lost all interest to her. Her husband was dead, she said; died four years ago. She had struggled to keep the children together, but failed. They were taken from her and sent to the Juvenile asylum. Only recently she had got them back with infinite trouble—opposed by poverty on one side and the persecution of her husband's relations on the other. But she could keep them. Work was failing, and FOOD WAS GETTING SCARCE. She saw she must lose them soon. Rather than that she decided to kill them. She thought it over, and by Wednesday had made up her mind fully. She sent Anhad made up her mind fully. She sent Anthony, the oldest of the boys, to a drug store with a quarter to buy rat poison. The child brought back ten cents' worth of "Rough on Rats." Mrs. Liebknecht stirred it in tea and divided the draughts into three equal parts and gave to the boys to drink; each a cap. This was on Wednesday morning. Very soon afterward all three were taken ill. Watching their suffering steadily, the mother stayed with them all that day, getting about the house without exciting the attention of the tenants by unusual concern or any sign of alarm. Wednesday night and all Thursday the little sufferers lay in their dying agonies with the mother hovering about, seeing three little lives ebbing out slowly and surely. They begged for water, and with the merciless cruelty of a fiend, the mother gave them whisky to drink. The two eldest drank, and cried that they were on fire. They begged to be taken out in the back yard and have the hydrant turned on them.

But their feeble cries found a deaf ear with the mother and did not reach the outer world. Unmoved she went about finishing her work. At two o'clock Thursday afternoon, Charles died. Three hours later, his eldest brother breathed his last. Still the youngest (babe) of the three was left. With two dead victims of her awful crime lying dead, the mother held steadily to her purpose. Thursday night she sat by her dying child, Friday and until Saturday morning, when the little one's grip on life still refused to yield. Then did she weary of waiting and went out to tell the police. By this time, the woman and officer had reached the door of her house and she opened it to the officer. A glance inside told him that her story was true. In their bed lay the two boys long dead, and the little one gasping faintly on the sofa. The room was meanly furnished but clean. The mother stood unmoved looking on. The officer put her under arrest and alarmed the neighbors. He took the woman to the station and a hurried call was sent for an ambulance. The little one was driven rapidly to a hospital and everything was done there to save its life, but this was deemed hopeless.

short one and unusual quietude seemed to pervade the courtroom.

Soon the news reached town that another murder had been committed in the county—the most unprovoked and diabolical that has occurred recently. Willie Thomas, a young man of this county, started to market last Saturday. Night overtook him near Chattoogariver, the line between this state and South Carolina.

Sunday young Thomas, desirous of keeping the Lord's day holy, remained in camp. Near his camp is a country church house, known as Mt. Carmell. In the afternoon there was services at this church. The young man, learning the same, went out to hear the preacher. Some time before services began he was accosted by Wm. Hopkins, who asked the latter if he ever drank anything. Thomas said he drank nothing but water. Hopkins went off and was heard to say he would have a fuss out of Thomas before he got away from there if he could get it. he could get it.

Work.

Brandon, Miss., March 24.—[Special.]—The fourth week in the trial of Colonel Jones S. Hamilton, for the murder of Roderick D. Gambrell, closed tonight, and still the case is seemingly not more than half through.

The state closed its evidence, except in rebuttal, on Wednesday. So far the defense's witnesses have been mostly as to character. Many prominent, men, among them State Treasurer Hollingway, ex-Congressman Barksdale, have testified that the defendant was a man of peace. Three witnesses, among them United States Marshal Denkins, have sworn that the character of Nellie Denkins, the negro woman, who saw three men get out of a carriage, wait for, and fire on Gambrell, was bad, and that they would not believe her on oath. Another witness, who, could not tell who the men were, swears that only two men were firing, and the first shot came from Gambrell's position. No witness has yet sworn to seeing the carriage on the bridge during the shooting. It is said that the defense have a new witness who will swear to seeing Gambrell fire into the hack. The state claims that the case against Hamilton is stronger than ever before.

Wife Murder and, Suleide.

Winchester, Va., March 24.—Wm. Mc-Clune, aged 65, residing on Timber Ridge, in this county, murdered his wife Mary, about the same age, yesterday, and then shot himself in the neck with a rifle. When found he was sitting in a chair with the rifle between his legs. It is supposed he struck his wife with a cane fracturing her skull. No cause is assigned for the tragedy. McClune was a large man and quick tempered. His wife was a small woman. It is thought that he struck her in a quarrel and then, stricken with remorse, killed himself. Wife Murder and Suicide.

A REGION OF MURDER Where Foul Spirits Must Reign Throughout

the Night. GREENVILLE, S. C., March 24 - [Special.]-

GREENVILLE, S. C., March 24.—[Special.]—Glassy Mountain township is becoming somewhat noted as a place of crime. The sensation caused by the recent murder of Ben Ross, and the attempt upon the life of Deputy Marshal Odam, is carcely over, and now comes the news of the mysterious disappearance and supposed murder of Doc Mills, whose home is not far distant from where Officer Odam was shot. Mills and his wife had not been living contentedly together, caused, it is said, by a growing intimacy between Mills's wife and a neightbor named Kirkendale. Things went on this way for some time, until one night, after visiting some friends, Mills and Kirkendale started for their homes. After going some distance together, their roads parted, one going towards Mills's home, and the other to Kirkendale's.

Mills has never been seen since. For awhile people have thought that Mills left his wife voluntarily, but now think the missing man was murdered in some of the rugged paths that bisect the mountain.

People are thoroughly aroused, and a search party has been organized to explore the surrounding country. They are contident that the dead body of the missing man will be found.

BERLIN, March 24.—The situation between the central allies and Russia remains unchanged. The only alteration arises from the visit of the king of Roumania to Vienna which has resulted in a definite treaty, under which Austria pledges herself to resist any violation of Roumanian territory. Leading officers of the Roumanian army, who are strongly pro-Russian, are about to be removed and will be replaced by German or Austrian officers.

The emperor's decree of March 21, authorizing Crown Prince William to represent him in the transaction of state business is now recognized as tantamount to the creation of a co-regency. Besides the published decree, another exists which gives Crown Prince William full powers in the event of the emperor suddenly growing worse. Both were obtained by Bismarck during his interviews with the emperor at Charlottenburg.

by Bismarck during his interviews with the emperor at Charlottenburg.

An incident of one of the interviews, was teld by Bismarck himself and is as follows: While talking to the emperor a pain from the swollen veins in Bismarck's legs was so severe that it made him cry out. The emperor arose and lifted Bismarck's limbs ento a couch and wrapped them around. Regarding the real state of the emperor's health it is difficult to obtain authentic information. The bulletins issued are utterly unreliable and of his private life, what is known, is that he is able to take a little daily exercise in the

He does not move out of the rooms that are heaven a contain the conservation to the rooms that are beyond a certain temperature, and he cannot receive public deputations, it being feared that any disturbance might precipitate a crisis. Dr. MacKenzie does not leave him more than half an hour at a time. The feeling against Dr. MacKenzie is abating. In a letter written him by a friend, a doctor in Stettin he says:

THEIR BACKS UP.

The Rock Island's Answer to the Burlington's Petition.

A NEW DEVELOPMENT OF THE STRIKE,

The Rock Island Road Charges the Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railroad With Trying to Form a Trust.

CHICAGO, March 24 .- Freight traffic on the Burlington, which yesterday was moving prac-tically the same as before the engineers strike, is today at a standstill again. This condition of affairs is due to the action of two hundred switchmen employed in the Burlington yards here, who struck early this morning without any notice whatever to the road. Switchmer at Aurora, Ills., also stopped work, but that was the only outside point affected as far as the company knew up to 9 o'clock this morn-ing. The officials decided, however, to move no freight at all until this second strike is set-tled, and with the exception of live stock trains in transit, no freight is moving. Passenger trains are running as usual.

The company received no notice whatever of the intention to strike, and has as yet received no authoritative explanation.

The switchmep, however, have been heard to say that they objected to working on an engine not handled by Brotherhood men. As one of them put it this morning: "I don't throw another switch for a non-

"I don't throw another switch for a non-brotherhood man, and no man can make me." In the yards this morning and around the brotherhood, it was common gossip that the switchmen had been taken into the fold of the engineers and firemen brotherhood in consideration of their going out on strike. The offi-cials of their association have been very anx-ious from the beginning of the strike trouble ious from the beginning of the strike trouble that the Brotherhood of Engineers should take them into their counsels and place them on an equal footing, as they had done with the firemen, but the engineers seemed loath to do it, and gave as a reason that when the strikes occurred among the switchmen.

and gave as a reason that when the strikes occurred among the switchmen it was not long, for coupling pins were flying through the air, and not long after that the militia or military were called out. It would seem that the two organizations have fully come to terms. It is thought that as fast as the grievance committees return to their homes all switchmen between this point and Denyer will quit. There are about 200 switchmen employed by the Burlington here and 200 or 300 at other points along the line, so that about 500 men are involved. About fifty are employed at Galesburg and all but one struck this morning, but at Burlington and St. Louis the men were all at work at last advices. Only three switch engines were at work on the line at Chicago today, they being used for making up passenger trains. Switching for them was done by officials of the road who volunteered for the work.

Chief Arthur was interviewed today, but his ignorance remains as protound as it has always been since the expressions.

The Rock ISLAND'S BACK UP.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway filed its answer in Judge Gresham's court today to the petition of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad that the Rock Island company be compelled to receive and handle Chicago, Burlington and Quincy cars. The answer was a sensation of the first magnitude. It in terms and in detail charges the Burlington and Quincy with having attempted to form.

ton and Quincy with having attempted to form a gigantic railroad trust, with all the objectionable features of such trusts, which hav tionable features of such trusts, which have become familiar to the public through the recent agitation of the subject in the newspapers; that the recent rainous rate cutting was inaugurated by the Burlington company to force other roads into such trust; that its policy towards the engineers and firemen was directed to bring about a strike of those men; that there was no other reason for such strike; that it has absorbed to itself about all of the available were curside of the such strike; that it has absorbed to itself about all of the available men outside of the engineers' brotherhood, and now seeks to bring about strikes on other roads, the Rock Island among others, by attempting to compel an interchange of traffice, that could not fail to bring on a strike; and, generally, that the entire policy of the Burlington has been directed to the angle of traffice, that could not fail to bring on a strike; and, generally, that the entire policy of the Burlington has been directed to the addies in the party. to the end of forcing its competitors into the

to the end of forcing its competitors into the trust. The Rock Island acknowledges its duty, as a common carrier, to receive and transport, when able, for all without discrimination, and alleges that it is now and has been willing to perform such duty, but it denies that it is under any obligation, legal or moral, to attempt that which it knows is impossible, especially when such attempt could benefit no one and would result in great in jury to a considerable portion of the population of several states and to its own stockholders, and especially does it deny that it is its duty to make such an attempt with the knowledge of the results which would follow when its demand by a competitor for the purpose of using its railway, demoralizing business of several states and forcing it and others into a combination prohibited by the laws of the United States.

Comparatively few people were present in the court, and before either the Burlington complaint, or the extraordinary reply of the Rock Island could be read, Judge Gresham inquired of attorneys on either side how much time they expected to require. Wirt Dexter, for the Burlington, answered grimly that if the Rock Island was in the same box with the Wabash, no time at all would be asked by him. The matter could be settled in a jiffy.

Robert T. Linceln spoke for the Rock Island's reply was not like that of the Wabash. "Our answer," he added, "means fight—a fight with all our strength."

Judge Gresham announced that he would set the hearing for Monday, and by the consent of all parties, either in Chicago or Milwankee, in which Judge Gresham should be that day, would be the place of trial.

The boycott on the Burlington was raised at Denver today. One hundred and twenty loaded cars were taken out by the roads sentering there. Of this number, one hundred were hauled by the Denver and RioGrande.

MAD ENOUGH TO FIGHT.

Mahone and Wise have a ElgiQuarrel and Split.

RICHMOND, Va., March 18.—Ex-republican Congressman John S. Wise, who has hitherto been regarded as Mahone's lieutenant and right hand man, issues a manifesto to-day in which he antagonizes the leadership and methods of the "little publican circles, and the democrats look upon it with profound astonishment. Mr. Wise makes a vigorous "kiek" against Mahone's plan of organization, which gave him the appointment of all county chairmen, by which he virtually controlled nearly all the district and state conventions, and consequently the entire party.

all the district and state conventions, and consequently the entire party.

Wise proposes that the absolute power now in the hands of the "bose," shall be transferred to the people, where, he maintains, "it properly belongs."

"If the people are not fit to act for themselves," says Mr. Wise, "we had better go into some other party where the voters will not need a guardian."

He further gives notice that he will, in the approaching state convention, oppose the "unit rule" of voting in the national convention, which destroys all freedom of individual action and makes the twenty-four Virginia delegates twenty-three puppets and one man.

I have known General Mahone toolong and am personally too deeply attached to him to let these differences on questions of party policy alienate me from him or impair my regard and respect for his great abilities and good services."

This break of Wiso with the "boss" will have the effect, it is predicted, of uniting all the auti-Mahone and anti-Sherman republicans with Wise. The latter admits he is a Sherman man, but, in or-

Sometime ago she escaped and found her brother, and, although disgraced and disinherited by her father, she wants freedom from her uncultured and beastly husband.

Don't Joke Over a Man's Misfortunes.

From the New York Press. Some papers are disposed to make merry over the accident which recently befull Mr. George Gould and his wife. This is rather a brutal species Gould and his wife. This is rather a brutal species of journalism. Mr. Gould is engaged in a calling similar to that which commands the attention of many men in the business world. Even if it be true that his father has accumulated wealth by questionable methods his son is represented as being a modest young man, who goes his way in a quiet, unostentatious manner, attending to his business, which is certainly regarded as perfectly legitimate. Did he possess millions of dollars his heart would ache none the less in seeing his deavoted wife and young child buried in a wreck amid the dead and dying. ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 25, 1888.

Will the News Explain? In the editorial columns of the Savannah News, we find the following paragraph:

"Senator Brown," says the Philadelphia Press, "repeats his assertion that the people of his state are in favor of the total repeal of the internal revenue taxes, and there is little, if any, denial of the accuracy of his statement." The people of Georgia are strongly opposed to the repeal of the internal revenue taxes so long as the repeal stands in the way of statement of the strong through the processories of lite. If a reduction of taxation on the necessaries of life, there has been little denial of the accuracy of Ser ntor Brown's statement, it is because the statem is so palpably inaccurate as to require no denial.

This is bosh of a very tiresome variety. There is not a man in Georgia able to think or reason for himself but knows that the repeal of the internal revenue taxes will hasten, rather than prevent, a reduction of taxation on the necessaries of life. There are a great many people who are deceived by such stuff as that which we have quoted, but those who write the stuff are not de ceived.

They know perfectly well that reduction of the tariff will not reduce the surplus. On the contrary, they know that a reduction of the duties on the necessaries of life will increase the surplus by increasing importations. If the internal revenue system is left unrepealed and the tariff reduced, the surplus will be enormously increased. Nevertheless, as the Savannah News appears to have some special information on the subject, we are perfectly willing to be convinced. Instead of concentrating its knowledge in the shape of a paragraphic assertion, let our esteemed contemporary spread it out for the benefit of its readers, and for our benefit. Will the News, taking a fresh and a firmer grip on the subject, inform us how a reducof the import duties can reduce the surplus while the internal revenue system remains unrepealed? Will it give us its reasons for believing that tariff reduction will reduce the surplus while the excise taxes stand in the way? The Courier-Journal has already disposed of this matter by frankly avowing that the increase surplus when the tariff is reduced will compel congress to add more articles to the free list. The Courier-Journal is for freetrade pure and simple, and it doesn't hesitate to say so. the Savannah News also in favor of free-trade? If so, it ought to have the cour age of its convictions and say so, for if its editor knows anything about the matter at all, he knows that the perpetuation of the internal revenue system will lead to the ruin of American industries by compelling the country to resort to free-trade in order to reduce the ever-growing surplus. This is the programme of the whisky ring, and it is the programme of the free-traders.

It is said that Miss Mary Anderson models in clay. She should come to Georgia where there is plenty of clay of the old fashioned variety.

"Fighting Dick Anderson," as he was led, was one of the bravest of the brave. At Cold Harbor in response to a message from his commander he said: "Give my pliments to General Lee, and tell him that I have just repulsed the enemy's thirteenth charge!'

This valiant here was loved and honored as a citizen, as well as a soldier, and it is easy to understand the enthusiasm with which his old comrades have entered upon the work of erecting a monument to his

In another column will be found a detailed statement from the committee having the matter in charge, together with a graphic sketch of the general's military career. Many Georgians served in General Anderson's division, and it will doubtless afford them much gratification to lend their aid to the proposed monument by subscribing to the fund for its erection.

The Plea,of the Postal Clerks.

The bill which Congressman S. S. Cox introduced in the house, to increase the salaries of the United States postal clerks, is meeting with general favor, and such a strong showing has been made in behalf of the clerks that it is more than probable that the bill will pass.

It is to be hoped that it will, for of all the government employes none are poorer paid comparison with the responsibilities which they are called upon to bear, than the postal clerks, whose salaries now range from $800 to $1300 per annum. The position which a postal clerk holds is a most respon sible one, and only thorough, competent and well equipped men are capable of performing the duties of the office as is necessary to give the public an accurate and efficient mail service. Every piece of mail matter ndled in the United States, except those which are distributed in the cities in which they are mailed, goes through the hands of the postal clerks, of which there were at the close of the fiscal year of 1885, 4512 in whole country. These clerks hanfiled 4,964,673,577 pieces during that year, and this mail was carried over 121,-032 miles of road. This was nearly three years ago, and there has been a very great increase since then in the work which these clerks are called upon to perform. The average annual run for each erk was 40,167 miles, or an average of 110 les for every day in the year. For this on averages only about $1,000 ally, and out of this the clerks are com-their own expenses.

these salaries, but a combination of circum stances has prevented the increase being made before this. The inadequacy of this compensation has been very strongly impressed on the present congress, and from all parts of the country the postal clerks have brought strongest indorsements of the justice of their request for an increase. Of all public servants there are none brought more directly in contact with the public than the postal clerks, and, on the faithful performance of their work business and society depends largely the methods which guarantee reliable intercourse. Day after day they are engaged in work which carries them from one place to another, subjected to inconveniences and discomforts which are borne by but few others in the service of the government, and yet they are the poorest paid and the hardest worked class of its employes. These men have proven themselves wor thy of public confidence, and it is an extremely rare thing that any in this department of the government's mail service are found guilty of improper use of the mails. Nearly a thousand persons were tried in the United States courts last year for offenses against the mails, and of that number only eight were postal clerks. Millions and milons of dollars pass through their hands annually, and the honesty and competency of their work is attested in the fact that of the complaints against the mail service, fewer are made against them than against any others who handle the mails, and yet the great bulk of the work passes through the hands of the railway postal clerk.

THE Graphic says that Adam Badean is in a quicksand. This is putting it rather mildly. He is in a mudhole of his own making.

How High License Works,

A very strong movement is on foot in New York to bring about high license in that city, and it is assuming such proportions that it seems to be a question of but short while before it will be successful in providing a remedy for the indiscriminate licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors in that city.

The movement is opposed by two classes; by the extreme prohibitionists, who will ac cept no compromise, and by the extremliquor men, whose confidence is such as to lead them to believe that they can override any sentiment which looks to the proper regulation of the traffic.

A committee composed of prominent citizens of New York undertook to get information as to the workings of the high license law in Nebraska, which state has had seven years' experience in the matter, and its testimony is of very great import ance in arriving at the true merits of the system. Governor Thayer says that the law has been of "material benefit to the state," and Chief Justice Reese, of the supreme court, says that "its practical operation is as good a system of regulation as can be desired." Judge Cobb, of the supreme court, Judge Maxwell, ex-Governor Saunders, ex-Governor Furnas, ex-Chief Justice Mason, Judge Dundy, and others unite in giving the system their strongest indorsement, and affirm that drunkenness, crime and pauperism are "materially lessened" by the advantageous workings of the system. Several of these men have been strong prohibitionists, and what they say on the subject carries weight with it from the fact that they are all prominent men, and have ulation tried in nearly all its forms. The testimony of Frank W. Lewis, secre tary of the State Law and Order league, is probably more valuable than any of the above, from the fact that he has given the question years of careful study. He says that he is satisfied that as purely a temp ance measure, high license is superior to the constitutional prohibition of Kansas or the legislative prohibition of Iowa, and as a natter of police regulation, it is infinitely preferable on account of the small cost and

It appears that the distance from ocean to ocean by the proposed route in only 169 miles, but of this distance only forty miles will have to be canal, as the remainder of the way is free navigation through Lake Nicaragua, the Rio San Juan, and the vallev of the Rio San Francisco. The enterprise has been talked of for more than 200 years. It has always been considered the most practical and least expensive route. The expense is estimated by experts at $75,-000,000, and it will pay six per cent on a capital of $200,000,000. The late Governor Stephens was a strong advocate of this canal. As late as 1883 he said:

My opinion is if the Nicaragua canal is constructed the Panama would have but little to do; the shortening of the distance of transit would bring all our western states commerce, and all the Asiatic and Japanese commerce that seeks a transit over this continent by ships would seek the shorter route to be opened by the Nicaragua canal. I have not much confidence in the success of the French enterprise known as the Lesseps, but even granting that it should succeed, in my opinion, as you preceive. prise known as the Lesseps, but even granting that it should succeed, in my opinion, as you perceive, I think the establishment of the Nicaragua route would virtually close the business of the other for the reason stated. But even if I felt satisfied of the success of the French route over the Panama isthmus, I should still urgently advocate the establishment of the Nicaragua canal which would be entirely under the control of the United States. The trade from the Pacific coast as well as Asia and Japan which seeks a market in the eastern states and in Europe, would take the shorter Nicaragua route and would be sufficient to pay well on the investments to be made in that enterprise. The United States should not be at the mercy of any foreign power or enterprise either as to rules or traffic, or as to the use of the transit in time of war.

The projectors of the canal are now asking congress for a charter, and it is likely that the matter will come up for discussion in a day or two. It is believed that the

"Fighting Dick" Anderson,
From the Charleston News and Courier,
Ex-Lieutenant General R. H. Avierson died suddenly at Beaufort, S. C., on Thursday last.
The blow is as severe as sharp. South Carolina had not a son who did more for her fame in the condicedrate struggle than was achelved by him who has fought his last battle, and who knew,
in peace, pains and troubles harder to bear than the dangers and privations of war. Sadly enough he had only held for a few months an appointment which gave him comparative ease, and it was in contemplation to nominate him next year for a pub-contemplation to nominate initial very a pute ite office, which should mark conclusively the estimation in which he was held by the people of the state.

How shall we speak of General Anderson as a soldier? His valiant deeds speak for him! At the battle of Williamsburg he commanded Longstreet's division, his brother, who was his aid-de-camp, being killed at h's side. In the battles around Richmond he won new fame, making the last and successful charge at Galnes' Mill, and winning his promotion to the rank of major-general. At Sharpsburg he was wounded in the thigh, but remained in charge of his division he fell fainting from his horse. At Chancellorsville, with a line of battle no stronger than a picket line, he held the confederate center while Jackson executed his famous flant movement. The men of Anderson's division were ten paces or more apart. Only thick woods concealing their weakness, deterred the enemy from making a crushing attack. General Lee sent him thrice the order to press the enemy, being unawaré of his critical condition. At last he rode in person to the spot where General Anderson was. Two attacks had been repelled; the third was about to be made. Jackson's guns opened at the critical moment and created a diversion. Seeing for himself the position of affairs, General Lee, usually so reserved and reliccontained, clasped General Anderson by the hand and said: "My noble old soldier I thank you from the bottom of my heart." After the march through the burning woods to Spottsylvania; and his successful repulse of the enemy, General Lee wrote him and his command a warm letter of thanks. So much of it as relating to himself he supressed. The rest he published to the corps. Three times he was personally thanked by letter by General Lee, and to few of even those nearest to him was it known that such letters had been written. General and Mrs. Lawton's Reception. From the Vienna News.

Last Tuesday General Lawton, the United States minister, and Mrs. Lawton held a reception in their apartments at the Grand hotel. His excel-lency had first intended to receive his countrymen on Wednesday, Washington's birthday, but having to attend a dinner on that evening given to some members of the diplomatic corps by Count Kalnoky, the minister of foreign affairs, he chose the eve of the national fete day instead.

Shortly after five o'clock the first visitors began to arrive, amongst whom were Mrs. Fenner Lee and Miss Carrol, Mr. and Mrs. J. Roosevelt, Colonel Jussen, United States consul general, Mrs. and Miss Jussen and Miss Holmes. By 7 o'clock some three hundred ladies and gentlemen had responded to General and Mrs. Lawton's invitation, and it was pleasing to observe the satisfaction evidently felt by everyone present that an opportunity was afforded them of making the acquaintance of the distinguished gentleman who represents the United States at this court. Mr. Herschel, in the name of his wife, who was unable to attend through illness, presented Mrs. Lawton with a bouquet of flowers grown in his own garden in Dobling, adorned with miniature flags of the stars and stripes, tied with ribbons of the American colors, which were fastened to a small portrait of Washington.

Our readers are aware that no special invitations were issued for this reception, but that General and Mis. Lawton invited their countrymen through the medium of the Vienna press. The reason: of choosing this mode of invitation were obvious. His Excellency, who is only a short time in Vienna, and was perfectly ignorant of the extent of the American colony here, had no other means of notifying his invitation to his countrymen, and was therefore obliged to adopt a course which, though unusual in this country, is by no means so in the United States, where many high officials, even the president of the republic, announce their public receptions in this way. The result showed that, in the circumstances, General Lawton's proceeding was very practical, for he had the gratification of assembling around him more Americans than have probably ever before been brought together in Vienna. More ever before been brought together in Vielna. Moreover the gathering was a highly representative one, Including as it did, Americans from a great number of states, and especially students from

New York, Boston, Pittsburg, Kansas City, Chicago, etc. Amongst these was Mr. Staife, of Pittsburg, the first American who ever obtained the degree of doctor of philosophy in Aienns, and Mr. Harry Faerber, whose name was recently mentioned in connection with a rumor, that cently mentioned in connection with a rumor, that he had made a donation of a million dollars for the foundation of a university in Chicago. Many of the guests were not residents, but only passers through, and included Mr. Harper, of the celebrated publishing firm, Harper Bros. in New York, with his two nieces.

Nothing could be more claiming than the dignified, withal most cord al manner in which Mrs. Lawton, attired in a rich toilet of black velvet and moire trimmed with jet, received her guests, whom she made feel thoroughly welcome. Both host and hostess had a kind word to say to everyone, and moved about from group to group. Tea, ices and other light refreshments were handed round from the well stocked buffet in the adjoining room, where also many a bumper in champegne was drunk to the memory of Washington. About 8 o'clock the company dispersed after thanking General and Mrs. Lawton for their courtesy shown to the American

Women and Night Travel. From the Boston Herald.

We find the singular statement made that very few women are now found traveling in sleep-ing cars. It will be a surprise, we imagine, to the ordinary traveler. If the statement had been that few women enjoy that kind of travel it would have been nearer the truth, and, indeed, in more respects than one, the comfort of the fairer sex is not so well cared for on the sleeping car as that of the other. A western railroad man suggests that women be employed as conductors on these cars. We doubt if much would be gained in this way, if it were practicable. What is most needed is privacy, and the new system of Mann boudoir cars comes nearer to affording this than the Pullman. By and by the railroads may provide a car exclusivel women, and then a woman conductor will order. We do not see why it should not be reason ble to afford such a car on the longer routes now.

Robert Dunham Bravely Faces Death in Mexico.

AN INTERESTING BIT OF HISTORY

rom the Tipton Record.

The Story of Brave Robert Dunham as Taken from Grandmother Fisher's Scrapbook.

Grandma Fisher's soul was brimfull of pat-cictism. How could it be otherwise? Her grandfather had been a revolutionary soldier; her father a pioneer settler of Tennessee, and an Indian fighter from his youth up; her brothers, with pioneer and patriotic instincts, had fought under the battle-flag of the lone star state for Texan independence; her sons under the battle-flag of the southern confederacy. We are not surprised then to see pasted in the scrap book a piece of silk from the battle-flag of the Seventh Tennessee cavalry, in which regiment her sons served through the late war; nor are we surprised to find a scrap from the military vest of General Sam Houston. In her childhood, she was familiar with the stories of the heroic deeds of the Seviers, the Shelbys, the Tiptons, the Bledsoes and the Robinsons; her womanhood was familiar with the doughty deeds of Houston, Bowie and Crockett and their compeers; her old age with the grander deeds of those who took part in the mighty strife in which the cause, dear to her heart, was lost. On another page of the scrap book we find pasted an old letter, dated from Matamoras, and addressed to Bailey Payton, a distinguished man of Tennessee and a kinsman of the Dunham family.

MATAMORAS, January 11, 1817.—Bailey Peyton MATAMORAS, January 11, 1817.—Bailey Peyton—Dear Sir.—Although our acquaintance has been very limited, still the friendship you have ever expressed for the family, and the ties of blood, together with my present situation, embodien me to andress you. I am a prisoner of war in this place, together with some 200 others. The particulars of the tattle and surrender you will learn through the Mexican papers. My motive is addressing you is to request you to write to my mother and inform her of my situation. We are destitute of clothing, and without means of obtaining any. The length of our term of stay here is very uncertain, but it is thought by many that we will start for the city of Mexico in a few days. I think it more than probable that we will tremain here for a month at least.

Any assistance you may render will be thankfully received and ever remembered with gratitude by Robert Holmes Dunham.

Toward heights sublime as they aspire—
Dared idly dream thy window there
The faintest ray of hope might wear,
At twillight hour would I return
To watch that kindling taper turn,
And wake such chords as well might move
Thy soul to hear my tale of love!

The Police Department Receives a Letter About Him.

The Force Finds a Negro Full of Bird Shot-The Two Negroes Who Fired the Woods Tried.

flashing between Atlanta and Brooks Station. But the negro has not been arrested yet.

Nearly every one in Atlanta is familiar with Redding's history—especial his criminal history. Years ago he went away from Atlanta, and went quickly, because there was a heavy reward for him. After Redding shot Nig Simpson, a member of the police force, and had in turn been shot nearly to death by Captain Couch, he was gent to jail, and then to the chaingang. From the chaingang he made the chaingang. From the chaingang he made a desperate break, and since then officers in rgia, Alabama and Mississippi have been trying to secure the reward offered for his arrest. A few days ago, when the safe burglary at Senoia happened, Redding cropped up again, because he was supposed to have had a hand in that. After that blowing, a letter was received at police headquarters from J. M. Bridges, Brooks Station, asking if Cathrine Woodruff Brooks Station, asking it Cathrine Woodruft lived in Atlanta. The woman was known as Redding's mother, and Chief Connolly, half suspecting that the letter was written by Redding's friends, wrote the officers at Brooks Station. A reply showed that the letter was from an officer who had traced Redding through and who was awaiting instructions to arrest him when he skipped out. Padding 6. through and who was awaiting instructions to arrest him when he skipped out. Redding is about six feet high, bright copper color, forty or forty-five years old, weighs one hundred and seventy-five pounds, has a swaggering gate, and walks with shoulder points apparently drawn up, and goes by the names of Wiley Redding, Wiley Thomas, Tom Thomas and Tom Woodruff.

They Went to the Stockade.

The two negro boys who built a big fire in the woods near the Piedmont park a few nights ago were arraigned in police court yesterday morning. They were Wm. Chapman and George Alexander, and to the charge they plead not guilty. The evidence showed clearly that they had made the fire and that they were sitting around it when arrested. Judge Anderson fined them ten dollars each. They were unable to pay the fine and were sent to the stockade. Where was He Shot?

They Went to the Stockade.

Sergeant White came upon a negro man yes-terday thoroughly perforated with birdshot who was apparently in hiding. The negro told such conflicting stories as to his wounds that the sergeant decided to arrest him. After he was taken to the stationhouse and given a cell friends reached the prison who informed the officers that the negro, whose name is Loyd, had been shot accidentally while out hunting.

Robert Dunham Bravely Faces Death in Mexico.

AN INTERESTING BIT OF HISTORY.

Story of Brave Robert Dunham as Taken from Grandmother Fisher's Scrapbook.

From the Tipton Record.

Grandma Fisher's soul was brimfull of patrictism. How could it be otherwise? Her grandfather had been a revolutionary soldier; her father a pioneer settler of Tennessee, and an Indian fighter from his youth up; her brothers, with ploneer and patrictic instincts, had fought under the battle-flag of the lone star state for Texan independence; her sons under the battle-flag of the southern confederacy. We are not surprised then to see pasted in the scrap book a piece of sifk from the battle-flag of the Seventh Tennessee cavalry, in which of the Seventh Tennessee cavalry, in which regiment her sons served through the late war; nor are we surprised to find a scrap from the military vest of General Sam Houston. In her childhood, she was familiar with the sto-ries of the heroic deeds of the Seviers, the Shelbys, the Tiptons, the Bledsoes and the Robinsons; her womanhood was familiar with the doughty deeds of Houston, Bowie and Crockett and their compeers; her old age with the grander deeds of those who took part in the mighty strife in which the cause, dear to her heart, was lost. On another page of the scrap book we find pasted an old letter, dated from Matamoras, and addressed to Bailey Payton, a distinguished man of Tennessee and a kinsman of the Dunham family.

MATAMORAS, January 11, 1847.—Bailey Peyton— ear Sir.—Although our acquaintance has been very writer was a brother of Grandma Fisher. He came to Tipton county in his boyhood. He rewriter was a brother of Grandma Fisher. Hecame to Tipton county in his boyhood. He received the rudiments of an education at the Mountain academy under the instruction of Dr. Holmes. He made a profession of religion when a young man and united with the Baptist church at Covington, then under the care of the Rev. Peyton Smith. He showed his faith by his work. He, with Joe Borum, organized the first union Sunday-school in town, in which school the writer of this sketch recited the first Sunday-school lesson of his life to Robert Dunham, and to this day remembers this first lesson, together with the puncheon seat, the boys who sat with him, the old church, and best of all, the features of the teacher. They are all mirrored on the tablet of memory. In 1827, he, with his father's family, moved to Texas, then belonging to Mexico. Shortly after their arrival the war for independence broke out, and Bob Dunham enlisted and followed the leadership of that strange man, General Sam Houston, taking part in the wholewar until near its close, when, with several others, he was sent across the border into Mexico on what is known as the Mier expedition. Somewhere near the city of Matamoras they met a force of Mexicans vastly superior to them in numbers. Being surrounded and seeing the utter hopelessness of their situation they surrendered upon condition of being treated as prisoners of war. The Mexicans accepted the surrendered with the conditions, else they would have taken their chances for a second Alamosacrifice, and have sold their lives as dearly as possible. Two hundred of their number were captured and taken first to Matamoras, where they remained for a short time, and from which place Bob Dunham wrote the letter to Bailey Peyton. In a short time they were ordered to the city of Mexico, where they were tried by a courtmartial and every tenth man condemned to be shot. On the morning after the trial they were all marched out of prison to the grand the city of Mexico, where they were tried by accourtmartial and every tenth man condemned to be shot. On the morning after the trial they were all marched out of prison to the grand plaza of the city and drawn up in line, where an official, with a bowl, containing 200 beans, all of which were white except twenty, ordered them to draw for life or death, the white bean denoting life, the black bean death. It was the lot of Kobert Dunham to die, he having drawn a black bean. Knowing his dreadful fate, yet feeling contempt for the scoundrels who coulds so violate their plighted word, it is related that feeling contempt for the scoundrels who could so violate their plighted word, it is related that when he saw the color of his bean, that he placed it on the forefinger of his left hand and placing the forefinger of his right hand on the bean, shot it into the face of the officer in command. They were then remanded 40 prison for a short time and a priest sent to shrive them for death. When he came to Bob Dunham and ordered him to kneel and make confession, he told the priest that his knee had never bent to any being but God, and never would. He then wrote the letter which follows to his aged mother, when he kneeled down, turning away from the priest, and commended his soul to God, after which he, with the nine-teen others who had drawn black beans, were marched out and shot down, while they, with the unblanched cheek and dauntless eye, looked down the barrels of the deadly muskets.

MEXICO—Dear Mother: I write to you under the most awful feelings that a son ever addressed a mother, for in half an hour my doom will be finished on earth. I am doomed to die by the hands of the Mexicans for our late attempt to escape the orders of P. Santa Anna that every tenth man should be shot. We drew lots. I was one of the unfortunates. I cannol say anything more. I die, I hope, with firmness. Farewell! May God bless you, and may he, in this, my last hour, forgive and pardon ail my sins. Farewell. Your affectionate son, R. H. DUNHAM.

We close this sketch of Grandma Fisher by stating, what the reader has doubtless already guessed, that she was a devout Christian, a member of the Baptist church. She outlived her husband by a few years, and passed to the better land in 1886. Our intention in writing these sketches of the pioneer men and women of Tipton county is for the benefit of the young, that they may know something of the heroism and patient endurance of their ancestry.

Thousands of traveling men visit Atlanta annually, but there is none as highly appreciated from a musical standpoint as Frank Scribner, who represents John F. Stratton of New York.

Instruments of every description were displayed in an attractive way all over the room. The first thing that the "professor" selected for a test was an ordinary tin whistle, but in his hands the sweet strains of music charmed his audience. One by one he went through his mammoth collection until he reached the harmonica and it was on that instrument that he completely captured the crowd.

Emma Abbott captured her Atlanta audience when she sang the "Last Rose of Summer," and Professor Scribner also made a lasting impression on his hearers with the same sweet song. This old song was never rendered more charmingly than then. It was captivating and soothing and the applause that greeted the rendition was merited. The variations of "Home Sweet Home," was the next and was beautifully done.

A moment later a lively selection chased the serious thoughts from the minds of those present.

Professor Scribner next gave a break-down on his new instrument, the autoharp, and it was simply immense. Those who had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Scribner perform on twenty-five different instruments so perfectly will long remember the sweet music and the jolly good fellow who rendered it.

Why Cigarettes Are Injurious. This is a question that has been agitated, yet never answered, until it is regarded as almost suicidal to habitually smoke eigarettes. But we will take, for example, the Mexicans, Spaniards will take, for example, the Mexicans, Spaniards and Turks, who from the cradle to the grave carry a cigarette in their mouths; but do we ever hear of congested lungs or tobacco hearts in those countries? Why is it that American cigarette smokers have throat trouble, lung affectious, and heart disease? It is easily, explained. The Mexican, Turk and Spaniard smoke pure tobacco rolled in a corn husk or pure rice paper, whereas the American smokes common and adulterated tobacco, loaded with opiates and other injurious drugs, wrapped in the vilest rag paper. So, can you wonder if a man confirmes to use such vile articles, and breathes the smoke of such into his lungs, that his system is impregnated with Disease? Realizing those facts, Mr. C. Argyro, of Egpyt, has decided to place upon the American market, a genulne Turkish cigarette, made from the world-renowned "Gueubek" Turkish tobacco, which grows to perfection only in Turkey. Those cigarettes are not only lnot delitaious, but are as fragrant as the finest Havana cigar, the aroma of which is delightful even to those who do not smoke. These cigarettes, the "Pyramides," have long been established in Paris, London, Vienna, and the principal cities of Europe; and recently introduced in New York, where they have met with unprecedented success in competing with cheaper brands of American make. The success of the "Pyramides" cigarettes in the east encouraged Mr. Argyro to introduce them in the south, knowing that all south erners love a good smoke. Mr. T. J. Harwell has secured the sole agency of Georgia and Alabama, which trade he will supply from Atlanta at factory prices, thus saving freight on goods from the east, havill supply both jobbing and retail trade. All orders addressed to T. J. Harwell, sole agent, Atlanta, Georgia; will be promptly filled. They are sold everywhere at 10 cents per box.

Canadian Catarrh Cure Co.:

Gentlamen—My wife was a great sufferer with Catarrh for over two years. She has been a little troubled ever since she was a child with the disease. About two years ago we were in Mississippi, and while there she was taken down with catarrhal fever; we had three of the best physiciaus we could get. They broke the fever and left her the worst case of catarrh of the head I ever saw. Her nose ran profusely, and for a year I despaired of her ever getting well. I tried several doctors and they could not cure her, and used every catarrh remedy I could hear of. I spent over $0 the past year for remedies, and all to no effect. At last it became so offensive that you could hardly remain where she was. I offered $1,000 to any doctor who would cure her (and that would have left us homeless), but I would not have cared for that if she could only be cured. We saw an advertisement in the Atlanta Constitution of "Canadian Catarrh Cure," and thought we would try it, and went to your office, when you gave my wife a small semple bottle of your remedy, and told us to come and get a large bottle when that was out. I bought the large bottle, and before she had used all of the bottle she was entirely well, and her health fully restored, and now does more work than any woman I know. She used the medicine over six months ago, and there has not been the slightest return or the disease. I hope everybody that has catarrh may find you and be cured. I am a traveling man and have told a great many of your wonderful cure. Yours Yully.

No longer the high crown, or the sugar loaf crown, but the more proportionate low and medium crown, with brims in proportion, showing the lines of beauty strongly and effectively. Among the many new andreally pretty shapes are the "Tosca," "Mist," "Torpedo," in 10 tes, the "Bunnie," "Cosey," Beatrice," in bonnets, and the "Stelton," "Paris," and "Glenmore," in hats.

The trimmings for this season are the most beautiful ever seen—such shading and blending of colors—most brilliant effects. The Ombre shadings in ribbons, silks and velvets are most dazzling. THROUGH THE CITY.

A few days ago a citizen of Atlanta was in New York, and wishing to buy a fine satchel, visited various establishments where trunks, valises and satchels are kept. In one of these stores he decided, after pricing the various kinds of satchels, that the prices were too high. He told the proprietor so, and further said him: "If I were back in Atlanta I could buy a satchel from Abe Foot's trunk factory just as good as yours at two-thieds the price." The dealer offered to bet that he could not. The wager was taken. The New York dealer was in Atlanta yesteaday and investigated the matter. He lost his bet and had to foot the oill. Thus, in one direction at least, Atlanta becats New York.

There will be memorial services in the Marietta Street Mission school this evening at 7:30 b'clook, in honor of Mr. Osgood Sanders. A full attendance of scholars and teachers is requested, and all others who desire to flo so are invited to be present. The services will be interesting.

Mr. J. S. Gaffney, superintendent of the United States Life Insurance company, of New York, is in the city today with his daughter, Miss Liflie M. Gaffney. They are stopping at the Kimball house where they will remain a day or two before taking up their journey again toward the land of flowers. Mr. Gaffney expresses himself as greatly pleased with the city of Atlanta.

The resignation of Mr. J. H. Lumpkin as reporter of the supreme court, caused a vacancy that will most probably be filled at an early day. A talk with several of the state house officials revealed the fact that as yet there had only been two names discussed for the position, Mr. Henry Peeples, of Atlanta, and exJudge Courtland Symms, of the Brunswick eigenit

Those that contemplate taking a trip to the Pacific coast could not select a better opportunity than to secure accommodations with this party.

Next Saturday afternoon, the Piedmont park gates will be open again, a trotting match between two of the lest horses in Georgia being the cause. "Jim Hickey," a fine animal, owned by Frank Redd, and "Bessie," a fine mare, will speed around the track for the best three out of five. There will be running races too, and after that Mr. Redd will sell "Jim Hickey," to the highest bidder.

That cannon ball train to Columbus, over the Atlanta and West Point road, is now one of the best equipped and most convenient trains in the south. The chair cars and the finest coaches have been added, and the train is now a model. Conductor Gorman, who made the LaGrange accommodation so popular, is now in charge of the train, and will soon have the cannon ball a great train.

Another party of New England capitalists is coming south in a few days.

This is the second tour of the southern bureau organized recently in Hartford, Conn., for the purpose of encouraging and directing investments of northern capital in southern enterprises. The welcome extended to the excursionists in Atlanta upon their first tour has induced the second party to make Atlanta once more a stopping place. The party artices in Atlanta at 6:15 a. m., in charge of Editor H. T. Sperry, of the Hartford Evening Post, Saturday, March 31st, and leaves late in the afternoon of the same day. COURT AND CAPITOL.

The County Courthons nadge Marshall J. Clarke sat in chambers a hours yesterday and heard several mo-is. Several of the cases set for a hearing were not reached.

The case of Walker vs. Chambers was argued. Mr. J. C. Jenkins appeared for Mrs. Chambers, who sues for her homestead rights, and Colonel Thomas P. Westmoreland represented Mr. Walker. The proceedings raised several questions of fact, and these the court decided should be determined by a jury. Consequently the case was docketed, and will come up in its turn in the superior court.

In the superior court the dockets were sounced yesterday morning and cases were set for trial next week, which will be the last week devoted to civil business.

for trial next week, which will be the last week devoted to civil business.

The certiorari case against the city council of Atlanta in which Mr. Con Mehan is the plaintiff, was heard by Judge Marshall J. Chrke yesterday morning. Colonel Rube Arnold presented the case in behalf of Mr. Mehan. The writ alleged that Mehan had procured a retail liquor license from the city council; that subsequently this license was revoked; that in its revocation the city council transcended its authority. Judge Clark denied the writ on the ground that the city council being a legislative body, the superior court could not interfere with its acts. Judge Clarke said that in the event that an officer of the city had gone to the saloon of complainants and forcibly closed its doors, then redress might be sought by certiorari. Colonel Arnold believes, he says, that Mehan will have to test this question by reopening his saloon and suffering the marshal to forcibly close. In that event Colonel Arnold will be able to get the case into court again.

into court again.

The case of Mrs. Geo. Hoppie against her husband, brought over from last Saturday, was heard by Judge Clarke. This was a petition for alimony, and the court granted the petitioner's request and issued an order compelling Mr. Hoppie to pay Mrs. Hoppie $30 a month.

After the United States circuit and district courts were opened on Saturday morning, the grand jury was called in, and Judge Bigby moved, in honor of the memory of the late Hon. Morrison R. Waite, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, that the

More than $25,000 worth of diamonds, besides the most beautiful jewelry will be shown and the admittance will be small compared to shows of far less merit. The store will be design. It will all be shown to perfection and the beauty and rare taste exhibited will be, well, transcendental. No other word will express it.

Then again the music will be something grand. Easter music cannot be compared to it. It will be of the finest instrumental kind and made not by any organ or piano, but by harps, and all other instruments of a musical nature. What do you think of it? THE COMMITTEE MEETS.

And the Schemes to Advertise Atlanta ar Mr. Beutell, the efficient chairman of the Art. Beutell, the encent charman of the street committee of the general council, has done many things creditable to himself, but his best piece of work since he began his term as councilman was his resolution introduced at the last meeting of the general council asking the mayor to appoint a council asking the mayor to appoint a committee to devise a plan to induce emigration and visitors.

That committee met yesterday in the mayor's office.

There were present from the council Mr. Beutell, Mr. Howell and Mr. Rice, and from the citizen Messrs. S. M. Inman, R. J. Lowry, George T. Fry, George S. Thomas and J. S. Lester. Mr. Beutell and chairman of the com-

Colonel Fry then introduced the following R solved 1st, That each of the railroads coming R solved is, that each of the introdus coming into Athura be requested to make a special round trip rate for all persons desiring to visit Atlanta; that the price of such tickets be not greater than what would be equal to one straight faire; that the tickets be good for thirty days, with the right to stop over on the in bound trip, and be issued to all parties where as many as four persons apply for such tickets.

Resolved 2d, That a committee of three be appointed, with Hon. Albert Howell as chairman, to take the matter in hand and confer with the proper railroad authorities and secure the objects of the first of these resolutions; that said committee have full power to act.

The motion was adopted and Mayor Cooper named as the committee to aid Mr. Howell, Messrs. Rice and Lowry.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE BICYCLE TOURNAMENT.

Preparations for the Event-150 Wheelmen in Line.

The bicycle riders are brimfull of enthusiasm over the approaching tourney at the Piedmont park. It will begin the morning of the 16th of April and last through the next day.

Mesers, Homer Reed, Ham Cooper and Ed Durant, the committee on arrangements, report that they have received many favorable responses from the clubs in various cities. Rome will send a delegation of wheelmen eighteen strong, Fort Vally will be in line with twenty riders; Augusta will be largely represented; the Macon club will be here; Columbus, led by Champion Ingram, will be present in full force; Athens will sond a strong delegation, and the riders from several other towns will come.

towns will come.

For weeks past the tournament has been the one subject of conversation with the bicyclists all over Georgia, and they have been preparing for the races.

Valuable prizes will be bestowed upon the successful contestants. The prizes aggregate over $500.

Mr. Homer Reed, of Atlanta, and Mr. Ingram, of Columbus, will make a strenuous effort to win the first prize.

A full programme will be announced in a few days.

THE FRUIT CROP.

Rather a Gloomy Outlook for the Present The year with three eights in it is not the lucky year for Georgia that was expected; that is speaking from the standpoint of the orchard owner.

The report on the street that the fruit crop of the present year would be a complete failure on account of the cold snap just experienced, seems to be true in part.

ced, seems to be true in part.
Colonel R. J. Redding, assistant commis-mer of agriculture, was asked about fruit coop prospects.

Colonel Redding—I have had very limited opportunities for personal observation, there being but few fruit trees in my immediate section of the city; and I have seen but few definite reports from other sections of the state, he said. I have examined with care apples, peaches, pears and plums in my own and my neighbors' gardens. I am satisfied that ninety-five per cent of the peaches, sixty per cent of pears (LeConte), and ninety per cent of plums have been killed. Apples have not yet been seriously hurt, as the buds were not sufficiently advanced. Even the small percentage of peach buds which appear now to be unhurt may dwindle to nothing before the young peaches are half grown. It is often the case that fruit is not killed outright, but its vitality may be so impaired that it will never reach maturity, though apparently sound and good after a cold snap. The same remark applies to all of the fruits named. Assuming that Atlanta will approximately represent upper middle Georgia, as to the condition of the fruit crop, I think we may safely conclude that there will be very few, if any, peaches, a fourth of a crop, of pears, a very short supply of those Colonel Redding-I have had very limited be very few, if any, peaches, a fourth of a friends of the doctor, the plums. Apples are all right."

"Do you think the damages in other pertions of the state is as great as they are here?"

"I am very much afraid that the peaches and pears are badly hurt, even in the southern half of the state. You see the mercury fell to 33° on the morning of the 22d, and to 23° on the morning of the 22d, and to 23° on the morning of the 22d. This would indicate a temperature in any part of southern Georgia low enough to kill peaches and pears. It is often said that the fruit crop is never killed in March, but there is no poetry and less truth in the assertion. Last year the peaches, pears and plums, and many of the apples were killed on the morning of March 29th, the mercury reaching twenty-five degrees."

Pointed Out by an Old Indian. from the Dahlonega, Ga., Signal.

From the Dablonega, Ga., Signal.

We had an interview with Mr. Pink Davis, of Fannin county, last Wednesday, who came to our market with a load of produce. He informs us that there is considerable excitement in his neighborhood, over the discovery of a silver mine, worked by the Indians during their reign in this country. The place was shown to Mr. Aaron Warren, on last Friday evening, by an old Indian who lives in the Indian reservation in North Carolina. The explorers or prospectors who own the property have been at work, and they claim to have found the morters where the Indians crushed their ore before melting. These morters are cut out in solid granite rock, and vary in size from a quart dipper to the size of a large wash-pot, and in about the same shape. They have also opened the cut or shaft where the ore was taken from—removed large rocks at the mouth of same weighing several tons. Up to the present, they do not know the extent of the vein, but, suffice it to say, the ore they found around and about the morters, contains silver, gold and copper, but silver predominant. Captain F. M. Williams, our worthy ordinary, is in possession of some of the ore and some of the metal.

From the Columbus, Ga., Ledger.

Yesterday a flock of blackbirds spent the afternoon on Broad street, and their presence in the heart of the business portion of the city became a matter of interest to all who saw them. They were so tame that passing vehicles and pedestrians, instead of being the means of frightening them entirely away, only caused them to fly from one portion of the street to the other. Together with our tame pigeons, our tame buzzards, our tame English sparrows and our tame blackbirds, we are acquiring quite an aviarr.

Other towns have said of Jefferson that she has no society long enough and on this account, no doubt, the young ladies, the middle aged ladies and old ladies have united their energies to h ladies and old ladies have united their energies to bring our young people up to aristocratic notions, and assign each individual his position in a particular grade. It is not known whether they are to be graded according to intelligence, morality or wealth, and fears are entertained as to whether there will be a satisfactory division made. When anything is said derogatory to the bon tons, millionaires, elite, or aristocrats, every one takes offense and when abuse is heaped upon the second grade, every one thinks of the other fellow and smiles approvingly. We men have taken up the refrain and are pleased at the proposed change. How pleasant it will be to hear other towns speak of aristocratic Jefferson, her wealth, her modesty and her learning.

A Good Working Record. From the Griffin, Ga., Sun.

From the Griffin, Ga., Sun.

Nearly everybody in Griffin knows John Williams, the colored man who attends to the baggage at the Central passenger depot, but few people are aware of the amount of work John does or the great record he has made in working for the Central. Every day, Sundays included, for seventeen years John Williams has met the Central trains that pass through Griffin from 6 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night, and during that time he has never lost but five days time. This is a remarkable record for a man who works sixteen hours a day, and we doubt if there is a colored man in the state who can equal it. John always does his work well, too, commanding the respect of both white and black, and when he dies the Central railroad will have to go a long way to find his equal.

Planting Chufas.

John W. Baty has been planting chufas for several years with the best of results. He says they are no more trouble to cultivate than corn, and that one acre will fatten 1,600 pounds of pork. It will take eight or ten acres in corn to do it, but land is plenty and labor is cheap, and we suppose that most farmers will cheap, and we suppose that most farmers will prefer to cultivate a field in corn rather than a

Funny But Natural.

From the New York Sun. A beautiful and wealthy woman of fashion in this city recently won her first literary success with a sanny-goat story, which she sent to a juven-lie magazine. All the social triumphs of her life seemed fat in comperison to the renown she looked for when she got into print. The day arrived ceived a check for $30 for the nanny-goat story, she went wild with joy. She wrote to a lady friend, who had also been bitten by the tarantula of literary ambition, that, it was the proudest day of her life; that she I ad danced up and down the house all day like a crazy head; that she had read the story three or four times over to her chambermaid, her cook, her laundress, and the ragman; that she had rushed to her bewildered husband's office to nad rushed to her bewindered nussand's office to show him the check and read him the story again, and that she intended to throw away all social pleasures in order to win glory and immortality by her pen. At latest advice she had ordered a ream of paper, a barrel of ink, and a gross of quills for the service of her intellect. Yet she is not a feather headed young thing, but a matron who will soon come within sight of her fortieth mile post. If she has bad luck with her next nanny-goat she will, doubtless, conclude that fame is a bubble.

THE POLICE BOARD.

The Uniforms for the Men to Be Made at Once.

The Special Service Order Referred to a Committee, and Chief Connolly Given a Leave of Absence.

The board of police commissioners convened in special session last night, Chairman English and Commissioners Brown, Martin, Stevens and Brotherton being in attendance.

Commissioner Brotherton was wearing a pair of colored eyeglasses. Captain Connolly, chief of police, submitted to the secretary, Commissioner Martin, an envelope in which bids for spring uniforms for the police force were contained. The envelope was opened and two papers were taken out. One was a bid from J. A. Anderson & Co. and the other a bid from E. B. Fletcher. Fletcher's bid was not according with the specifica-tions and was thrown out. Anderson & Co.'s bid was for $19 and the contract was awarded

Captain Connolly presented a letter showing that his presence was needed in Jacksonville, Florida, at once, as a witness in the trial of the two railroad ticket thieves, who were arrested in Atlanta threa or four months. in Atlanta three or four months ago. The chief asked for a leave of absence to attend the trial and the request was granted.

There was a lull in the work and Chairman English asked finally:

"Is there anything else for the consideration of the board?"

"What about the resolution of Mr. Storens."

What about the resolution of Mr. Stevens

"W hat about the resolution of, Mr. Stevens touching members of the police force leaving the city?" asked Mr. Brown.

"That was referred to a committee, if you can remember," said Mr. Stevens.

"Then, is there anything more?" asked the chairman after another interval.

After some hesitation, Chief Connolly arose and called attention to the precise color.

After some hesitation, Chief Connolly arose and called attention to the special order suspending the detectives.

"I suggest," said Mr. Brown, after a second of silence, "that that matter be referred to the same committee as the one to which Mr. Stevens's resolution went. I do this with a sincere desire that a conclusion satisfactory to all may be reached."

"That suits me to a 'T', I am sure," said Chairman English, and the subject was so referred.

"Now I would like to ask the chief a ques-"Anybody can do that," remarked Commissioner Brown.

"Then here goes," said Commissioner Stevens. "Can two policemen on duty walk the streets together side by side?"

"There is a rule against it," answered the

"Then have that rule enforced," said Chair-Then have that rule enforced," said Chairman English.

Commissioner Brown introduced a resolution instructing the chief to submit to the board an accurate report of all the rewards paid to the detective department from April, 1885 to April, 1888. The resolution was adopted and the board adjourned.

THE VETERANS.

The Committee Meets and Effects a Permanent Organization.

Yesterday afternoon the committee of the Confederate Veterans' association met in Ordinary Calhoun's office to consider the matters connected with the proposed fair. The committee enlarged itself by electing the following new members: Adolph Brandt. Hoke Smith, James A. Anderson, E. P. Howell, Harry Jackson, Martin Nally.

An executive committee was elected to serve permanently. The members of this committee are Colonel L. P. Thomas, Judge Calhoun and Dr. Divine.

Dr. Amos Fox was elected secretary and treasurer. ent Organization.

It was determined that the fair should begin September 10th and continue two weeks.

It is expected that the fair will eclipse any entertainment of the sort ever attempted in the south. Ten of the most prominent members of the association will take special responsibilities upon themselves. Each one of them will agree to give under his personal direction a day's and a night's performance. In this way great variety will be had. making unfavorable reference to Cleveland's baking powder are from a rival baking powder company. These articles are intended to counteract, if possible, the letter to the public from General Hurst, late Ohio state dairy and food commissioner, in which he states that the Ohio commission's investigation of the baking powders, based upon the state chemist's analysis of thirty different brands, proves that Cleveland's is a strictly pure cream of tartar baking powder, entirely free from alum, ammonia, lime, etc., and that it is absolutely the best and most desirable baking powder manu factured; also, that the Royal baking powder contains ammonia, and that the Cleveland's is superior to the Royal in every quarity of ex-cellence. Another object sought by our competitors in the articles referred to is to diverpublic attention from the scathing but well merited rebuke administered to them by General Hurst for falsifying his official 'report in their effort to bolster up their baking powder

Cleveland's superior baking powder has never beem made of anything but purest grape cream of tartar, purest bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of wheat flour or starch, and has always been absolutely free from adul-teration. This is attested by the leading chemists in different parts of the country from analyses made of our powder purchased by them in open market in their respective local-ities, as shown by their certificates in the circular accompanying each can. We ask the public to show its disapproval of the despica-ble advertising methods referred to by extending its patronage to Cleveland's superior baking powder, which has fer eighteen years been first point of merit as a pure, efficient and bealthful bread leavening agent.

JOHNSON & CO.

Aristocratic Tendencies Noted.

From the Jackson, Ga., Herald.

Other towns have said of Jefferson that she has no society long enough and on this account, no doubt, the young ladies, the middle aged Jadies and old ladies have united their energies to bring our young people up to aristocratic notions, and assign each individual his position in a particular grade. It is not known whether they are to be graded according to intelligence, morality or wealth, and fears are entertained as to whether there will be a satisfactory division made. When anything is said derogatory to the bon tons, millionaires, elite, or aristocrats, every one takes offense and when abuse is heaped upon the second grade, every one thinks of the other fellow and smiles approvingly. We men have taken up the refrain and are pleased at the proposed change. How pleasant it will be to hear other towns speak of aristocratic Jefferson, her wealth, her modesty and her learning.

and her learning.

Give us a bank and a banker's daughter to lead the aristocrats, and send us a few people of whom to make a second class and society circles will be fixed.

A Good Working Record.

From the Griffin, Ga., Sun.

Nearly everybody in Griffin knows John Williams, the colored man who attends to the baggage at the Central passenger depot, but few people are aware of the amount of work John does or the great record he has made in working for the Central. Every day, Sundays included, for seventeen years John Williams has met the Central trains that pass through Griffin from 6 o'clock in the morning until 10 clock at night, and during that time he has never loat but five days time. This is a remarkable record for a man who works sixteen hours a day, and we doubt if there is a colored man in the state who can equal it. John always does his work well, too, commanding the respect of both white and black, and when he dies the Central railroad will have to go a long way to find his equal.

Planting Chufas.

From the Franklin, Ga., Register.

John W. Baty has been planting chufas for several years with the best of results. He says they are no more trouble to cultivate than corn, and that one acre will fatten 1,600 pounds of pork. It will take eight or ten acres in corn to do it, but land is plenty and labor is cheap, and we sappose that most farmers will prefer to cultivate a field in corn rather than a patch in chufas.

Never Saw So Many Birds. We never saw the like of birds that there are this year. A large drove of blackbirds intest the western part of town and have become quite gentle. The robins are here also in force.

Gainesville Fair Association.

Gainesville, Ga., March 24.—[Special.]—
A goodly number of gentlemen of the city and Hall county met yesterday evening, accepted the charter for the agricultural association, appointed committees, and entered vigorously upon the work of the organization. They propose to raise three thousand dollars and have a first-rate fair and stock show next fall.

Funny But Natural.

A beautiful and wealthy woman of fashion in this city recently won her first literary success with a manny-goat story, which she sent to a juvenile magazine. All the social triumphs of her life seemed fat in comparison to the renown she looked for when she got into print. The day arrived for the publication of the periodical in which she shope and when along with a copy of it, she response not well as the property of the she was the same and when along with a copy of it, she reshone, and when, along with a copy of it, she received a check for $30 for the nanny-goat story, she went wild with joy. She wrote to a lady friend, who had also been bitten by the tarantula of literary ambition, that, it was the proudest day of her life; that she lad danced up and down the house all day like a cruzy head; that she had read the story three or four times over to her chambermaid, her cook, her laundress, and the ragman; that she had rushed to her bewildered husband's office to show him the check and read him the story again, and that she intended to throw away all social pleasures in order to win glory and immortality by her pen. At latest advice she had ordered a ream of paper, a barrel of ink, and a gross of quills for the service of her intellect. Yet she is not a feather headed young thing, but a matron who will soon come within sight of her fortieth mile post. If she has bad luck with her next nanny-goat she will, doubtless, conclude that function had been should be seen to be a supplementation. 100 LATE FOR CLASSIFICATION.

THE POLICE BOARD.

The Uniforms for the Men to Be Made at Once.

The Special Service Order Referred to a Committee, and Chief Connolly Given a Leave of Absence.

The board of police commissioners convened in special session last night, Chairman English and Commissioners Brown, Martin, Stevens and Brotherton being in attendance. Commissioner Brotherton was wearing a Commissioner Brotherton was wearing a pair of colored eyeglasses.

Captain Connolly, chief of police, submitted to the secretary, Commissioner Martin, an envelope in which bids for spring uniforms for the police force were contained. The envelope was opened and two papers were taken out. One was a bid from J. A. Anderson & Co. and the other a bid from E. B. Fletcher. Fletcher was not according with the specifical er's bid was not according with the specifica-tions and was thrown out. Anderson & Co.'s bid was for $19 and the contract was awarded to them.

Captain Connolly presented a letter showing that his presence was needed in Jacksonville, Florida, at once, as a witness in the trial of the two railroad ticket thieves, who were arrested in Atlanta three or four months ago. The chief asked for a leave of absence to attend the trial and the request was granted.

There was a lull in the work and Chairman English asked finally:

"Is there anything else for the consideration of the board?"

"Is there anything else for the consideration of the board?"
"What about the resolution of Mr. Stevens touching members of the police force leaving the city?" asked Mr. Brown.
"That was referred to a committee, if you can remember," said Mr. Stevens.
"Then, is there anything more?" asked the chairman after another interval.
After some hesitation, Chief Connolly arose and called attention to the special order suspending the detectives.
"I suggest," said Mr. Brown, after a second of silence, "that that matter be referred to the same committee as the one to which Mr. Stevens's resolution went. I do this with a sincere desire that a conclusion satisfactory to all may be reached."
"That suits me to a "T, I am sure," said Chairman English, and the subject was so referred.
"Now I would like to ask the chief a quesreferred.

"Now I would like to ask the chief a question," said Commissioner Stevens.
"Anybody can do that," remarked Commissioner Brown.

"Then here goes," said Commissioner Stevens. "Can two policemen on duty walk
the streets together side by side?"
"There is a rule against it," answered the chief.
"Then have that rule enforced," said Chairman English.

Commissioner Brown introduced a resolution instructing the chief to submit to the board an accurate report of all the rewards paid to the detective department from April, 1885 to April, 1888. The resolution was adopted and the board adjourned.

THE VETERANS.

The Committee Meets and Effects a Permanent Organization. ent Organization.

Yesterday afternoon the committee of the Confederate Veterans' association met in Ordinary Calhoun's office to consider the matters connected with the proposed fair. The committee enlarged itself by electing the following new members: Adolph Brandt. Hoke Smith, James A. Anderson, E. P. Howell, Harry Jackson, Martin Nally.

An executive committee was elected to serve permanently. The members of this committee are Colonel L. P. Thomas, Judge Calhoun and Dr. Divine.

Dr. Amos Fox was elected secretary and treasurer.

It was determined that the fair should begin September 10th and continue two weeks.

It is expected that the fair will eclipse any entertainment of the sort ever attempted in the south. Ten of the most prominent members of the association will take special responsibilities upon themselves. Each one of them will agree to give under his personal direction a day's and a night's performance. In this way great variety will be had. The ladies of the Memoral association have promised to concretae with the veterans.

omething the Public Should Know. The articles, anonymous and otherwise, appearing from time to time in the newspapers, making unfavorable reference to Cleveland's baking powder are from a rival baking powder company. These articles are intended to counteract, if possible, the letter to the public from General Hurst, late Ohio state dairy and food commissioner, in which he states that the obic commissioner, in which he states that the Obic commission's investigation of the baking powders, based upon the state chemist's analysis of thirty different brands, proves that Cleveland's is a strictly pure cream of tartar baking powder, entirely free from alum, ammonia, lime, etc., and that it is absolutely the best and most desirable baking powder manufactured; also, that the Royal baking powder contains ammonia, and that the Cleveland's is superior to the Royal in every quality of excellence. Another object sought by our competitors in the articles referred to is to divert making attentions. public attention from the scathing but well merited rebuke administered to them by General Hurst for falsifying his official report in their effort to bolster up their baking powder when it compares so unfavorably with Cleveland's powder.

It is quite time that the public is made aware of the deceptive character of the advertising of the baking powder company in question. While extravagantly advertising their powder they have shrewdly concealed their use of ammonia in its manufacture, and have persistently maligned Cleveland's powder. Cleveland's superior baking powder has never beem made of anything but purest grape cream of tartar, purest bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of wheat flour or starch, and has always been absolutely free from adulteration. This is attested by the leading chemists in different parts of the country from analyses made of our powder purchased by them in open market in their respective localities, as shown by their certificates in the circular accompanying each can. We ask the land's powder. mes, as shown by their certificates in the circular accompanying each can. We ask the public to show its disapproval of the despicable advertising methods referred to by extending its patronage to Cleveland's superior baking powder, which has for eighteen years been first in point of merit as a pure, efficient and healthful bread leavening agent.

WHAT MAY BE EXPECTED. Some Interesting Astronomical Predictions
For This Week.

For This Week.

There will be an eclipse in DeGive's opera house tomorrow night—a stellar eclipse—that is, all the stars that have ever shown there will be eclipsed by the Boston Stars. There are two reasons why the opera house should contain a large audience. First, the meritorious character of the performance; second, the worthy object for which it is given. The proceeds will be given to the Atlanta Artillery. The Stars do not object to shine for such an object, and their liberality adds to their lustre.

The members of the Artillery company have been making elaborate preparations for the event. They will have the stage of the operahouse appropriately decorated. On it will be placed a cannon, two tents, and several flags. At the close of the regular programme there will be a prize drill between picked squads of the Means Cadets and the Edgewood Cadets. The concluding number on the programme is "The Bivouac on the Battlefield," which will be given by Nella F. Brown and the entire company, assisted by the Atlanta Artillery. A most touching tableau will here be presented. Recently the Boston Stars gave a performance in Petersburg, Va., and the Index-Appeal was moved to say:

"Rarely has a more enjoyable entertainment been ance in Petersburg, Va., and the Index-Appeal was moved to say:

"Rarely has a more enjoyable entertain ment been given than that of the Boston Star company, under the auspices of the Petersburg Musical association, at the Academy of Music last night. It ran smoothly from first to last, and completely charmed the large audience gathered to hear, despite the wretched weather and the frightful condition of the streets. Mr. Walter Emerson is a fine artist on his instrument, the cornet. In his style of playing, he reminds one of Arbuckle, to whom as well as Levy, he measures up well. All his selections were pleasing, and served to show fully his proficiency. Mrs. Medora Henson-Emerson, a winsome little hady, was the vocalist of the evening. She has a pure, high soprano voice, fairly well cultivated and responding with ease to all demands made upon that not too exacting. Her singing of Schubert's "Screnade," with cornet obligato, was the best heard for many a day, and was unquestionably the musical gen of the entertainment.

Miss Nella Brown recited, with superb effect, the unquestionably the musical gem of the entertainment.

Miss Nella Brown recited, with superb effect, the chariot race from Lew Wallace's "Ben Hut." The lady has a fine stage presence and a fail, well modulated voice. Her enunciation is clear, her style of recital graceful and free from mannerisms, her gestures easy and not too obtrusive, and the general effect of her work is a pleasant one upon the listener. Miss Brown was importuned by the suddence to give scyral encoyes—as were, indeed, the other artists named—and she, as well as they, responded most cheerfully. Her recital of a little extract from "Helen's Bables" was a gem of its kind. The entertainment was brought to a close with the recital of "The Bivonac on the Battlefield," a touching word and tone and picture of an incident of the late war, in which all the members of the company assisted. It should be mentioned that Mr. Rtdolf King, the planist accompanied most acceptably."

A CORNER LOT.

Fifty By Eighty Feet Where a Mudhole Used to Be.

Old Man's Work Nearly Finished —An Atlanta Character. "He has been at that for thirteen years."

And the speaker laughed as he watched an old man gathering up a bucket of stones and broken bricks. The old man continued his work until his bucket was filled, and then started back towards Spring street, stopping on the way to resurrect a rusted old hoop that vas nearly buried in the gutter.

After walking about three blocks he stopped the corner of Spring and James streets, and laying the rusty hoop carefully upon a great heap of hoops of all kinds and sizes, he carried the bucket to the back of his lot, a part of which was considerably lower than the front, and emptied the bucketful of bricks and

He was a very old man-about seventy years old, apparently—in his shirt sleeves, and wearing a dingy straw hat. He was feeble, too, and his steps were slow, but he stopped only to get a drink of water at the back door, and then ambled off with the empty bucket.

The little frame structure is half store and half residence. Just inside the door to the store sat a portly old lady of sixty or thereabouts. "Who is that old man yonder with that empty bucket?"

"Him! Why that's old man Lewis Powell, and he's my husband. I thought everybody knowed him."

"Is that all be doos?" hen ambled off with the empty bucket.

knowed him."
"Is that all he does?"
"Fill up the lot, you mean? No, no, he puts hoops on barrels and kegs, and raises calves and such like, but that's his main business. He's been at it now for nigh on to fourteen He's been at it new for nigh on to fourteen years."

"And how much has he filled in?"

"Oh, from the sidewalk on back. The lot is fifty by eighty, and it used to be just one big hole. Now here on Spring street where the front is, the bank went nearly straight down 'cause the eye of the sewer was right there. Then the sewer was open and run in a gully the whole length of the lot, and just about in the middle of the lot. Here on James street, at the side there, it wasn'tso steep. The front of the old house was about half way down the bank, and the pillars at the back was over ten feet high. The house wasn't more'n twelve feet that way, either, so you can tell how steep it was. And right at the back door the sewer passed."

"How deep was it?"

"Well, right here at the front the city men measured to the sewer once, and it was a little over the root of the sewer the sidewalk. The tom of it was the old house."

"Fourteen years ago."
"Fourteen years ago we bought it from Jack Smith on time. It wasn't much, but me and Jenny and Joe and Stella just buckled down and worked like tigers. The neighbors made fun of us at first, and even the niggers thought it was funny. Now, I ain't telling you this because I'm stuck up about it, but it just shows what the Powell family has done, and it shows what any poor folks can do if they just stick at it."

shows what any poor looks can do it they just stick at it."

"Didn't the old man help?"

"Yes, a little. But we had to live, and then he spent lots of his time a fillin' up, so the brunt of the money part fell on me and the children. We bought the mudhole, and he made the mudhole what it is now. Right here where the mudhole was there is a corner lot, and them what used to laugh at us would like mighty well to own it now." aighty well to own it now."

And the old lady smiled as though the

And the oid lady smiled as though the thought was a very pleasant one.

"Yes, sir," she continued, "it's worth a good deal now, and first thing you know when the streets get paved along here, it will be worth a let more than it is now.

"And the old man has worked mighty faithful. Little at a time he has fetched dirt, and rocks, and bricks, and trash. Then the city put a pine there for the sewer, and he began at the and bricks, and trash. Then the city put pipe there for the sewer, and he begin at the sidewalk on Spring street and filled back. The bank kept gettin' further and further, an after, I don't know how long, we built this little house on the filled-in part. The oheman kept fillin' back till we've got a pretting back yard; and there's only a little par left to fill back there. You see, he never tor up the old house—just throwed in around ford in it till he has almost buried it."

Why?

"Why?

"Why?

"Why?

"Oh, it's just a notion of his. He didn't want to see the old house fore up, and there it is now, with just the roof stickin' out. In a little while it will be one level yard, fifty by eighty, and a corner lot, too. And by the time it all gets filled up—well, me and the old man is gettin' feeble now, and we won't last much longer. But, now, that we are all one man's heart ma it ail gets filled up—well, me and the old man is gettin' feeble now, and we won't last much longer. But, now, that we are all out of debt, and just enough left to do to keep the old man's hand in, it does me good to think of that old mudhole, and how we had to save and slave and pinch to pay for it. And I think the old man likes to stand there at the corner and look back how level and speech it is each the old man likes to stand there at the corne and look back how level and smooth it is, an think how it was done, a handful at a time through the rain and the snot and the sunshine. Fourteen years It was a big job, but we stuck to it, and I', restin' now, for my work is done. The ol man don't work like he used to, but he say his job ain't finished yet, and he keeps fillin up."

"And when his work is done-"
"Then he'll rest, too."

AMONG THE SOLONS. The Empty Shoes of the Dead Chief Justice.

BOOM DETECTED FOR PHELPS. ch Would Involve a Wholesale Changing Around of Men in Public Places — Other News

WASHINGTON, March 25-[Special.]-It is Washiveron, state of the control of leads, but today Minister Phelps seems to have many friends. Upon the mere suggestion of Pheips a comprehensive scheme is constructed, it is said, to strengthen the administration politically. The scheme is rather far fetched, but I give it for what it is worth. It is, where Phelpsi made chief justice, to send Bayard to England, transfer Whitney to the department of state, and put an active democratic worker from the west at the head of the navy department. This, it is claimed, would strengthen Cleveland alike with the mugwumps and the straight outs, and put the party in fine working order for the campaign.

Mr. W. H. Barnum, chairman of the national democratic committee, who is now here, says that if the house will pass the right kind of a tariff bill, Connecticut will go democratic next fall. By the right kind, Mr. Barnum means a bill somewhat similar to that intro-duced by Mr. Randall, rather than the one framed by the ways and means committee. I learn from Mr. Barnum's partienlar friends that he does not expect to be re-elected chairman of the national committee, and the general opinion here is that "Baron" Scott, of Pennsylvania, will be selected to fill that po-

The report on the Mills bill has been printed, but copies have only been submitted to President Cleveland, Secretary Fairchild. Speaker Carlisle and "Parsee" Moor for their advice and consideration, before it is presented to the house. If Mr. Mills has sufficiently recovered the bill will be reported on Tuesday, but as he is today quite sick the probability is that it will not reach the house before the latter part of the week. DON DICKINSON'S DEMOCRACY.

If there was ever a true dyed in the wool mocrat in the cabinet Postmaster General Dickinson is that man. When he first accepted the position he made the statement that whenever an opportunity presented itself a re-publican should go to make room for a demo-crat, and he has carried out that statement to the letter. Besides many others whom he has recently turned out to seek pastures new, he "let Gallagher go" yesterday. Mr. Galla-gher has occupied a very lucrative position in the department for a dozen years or more, but as soon as Don Dickinson learned his politics Gallagher went. The republicans will, of course, raise a rumpus about it, but their rage will not even be considered.

THE MOBILE AND GRAND LAND GRANT. Mr. John Pcabody, of Columbus, is here in the interest of the Mobile and Girard railway. He will tomorrow appear before the house committee on public lands, favoring Mr. Oats's bill providing that the government shall for-feit lands given to this road under the land grant act when the railroads failed to comply with the regulations of said act, Five hundred and seventy thousand acres were granted to the Mobile and Girard company, provided their road was completed in ten years. The road was not completed in that time, nor has it yet been completed, and as the government continues to deduct twenty per cent from the amount due the railroad for transporting mails as provided in the act for all land grant roads, they are desirous of forfeiting the land except 25,000 acres sold to settlers, and in future receive the full amount due them for carrying the mails. Having failed to comply with the law, the land is not theirs either to sell or to hold, and the company is desirous of returning it to the government at once in order that they may get full returns for mail transportation. The 25.000 acres already disposed of will balance the government's account for past mail services, and the road will be benefited by the return. This matter has been pending before congress nearly three years, and twice during former sessions the committee has reported favorably, but the house has never acted.

THE COMPAG CAMPAIGN.

The approaching presidential election has become the most absorbing topic of conversation

The course campains.

The approaching presidential election has become the most absorbing topic of conversation at the national capital. Although during the first day's session of the democratic executive committee, held here some weeks ago, opposition to Mr. Cleveland was developed, it is now conceded by all parties that he will be unanimously renominated at the St. Louis convention on the 5th of June. A strong tight, however, to be made for the second place on the ticket. Governor Fitzhagh Lee, of Virginia, who is now making a tour through the south, is an acknowledzed vice-presidential candidate. He believes that his nomination will make Virginia soild, and will make her representation in the lower house of congress democratic, it now standing seven republicans and three democrats.

Since Senator Veorhees's statement that he will not even consider the will not even consider the proposition to allow his name to be used. Dickinson has also been mentioned, but he will not even consider the proposition to allow his name to be used. Dickinson came into the cabinet at the carnest soilcitation of President Cleveland, and his best friends in his own state. Michigan, are confident that even should Cleveland be releated, be would reside his portfolio and return to his practice. E crybody has heard the story of how, when a young man, he allotted a critain number of years to hard work and the regalities work has been interrupted, he has not abundoned the plan in which he has for years steadfastity adhered and when his present term expires he will be into the his many other candidates will be in the field before the assembling of the St. Louis convention, and it is hop essible at this early stage of the campaign, to tell who will have the most followers at that thus.

Now, in regard to the republican tacket. It seems to be the impression of the leaders of the republican party would be assured, Justice Million of the carried by 20,000 majority. They also claim that with his nomination the success of the republican party.
